CHURCHILL'S STORY OF BATTLE AT SEA

LONDON, April 11—Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in an address before the House of Commons today gave graphic details of the great sea battle off Norway.

He said the fleet was cruising "to the south about the level of Bergen" when, on Monday afternoon, "it was continuously attacked by enemy aircraft." A very heavy bomb fell on the battleship Rodney but her decks, the first lord said, "resisted it."

He said the cruiser Aurora was attacked unsuccessfully five times while "the destroyer Gurkha accompanying her was hard hit and sank after four and a half hours and the crew was rescued." He also announced that the destroyer Glowworm had been sunk.

"The destroyer Zulu sank a German U-boat off the Orkneys," the First Lord ediscloed.

"There is no reason," said Churchill, "why a large portion of the crew of the Glowworm should not have been saved if the ordinary humanity of fighting men had been practiced by the enemy."

The Renown, one of the British battle cruisers, opened fire at daybreak Tuesday morning, Churchill said, and added, "after three minutes the enemy replied."

ACTION BEGINS

The ship was the German Hipper class cruiser Scharnhorst, he said.

Action started at 18,000 yards, Churchill told the excited House, adding that the German warship's speed was very great and the Renown had to push to 24 knots.

After a further two minutes of firing a vertical column of smoke was observed rising from the Scharnhorst, he said.

After nine minutes of firing the Renown observed hits on the forward superstructure of the German vessel. She stopped firing and later her turret began firing "on local control."

The 10,000-ton cruiser Hipper "drew a smoke screen across the wounded battleships," Churchill said.

As the Renown opened fire "on the Hipper which turned away" both German ships "were now retiring at high speed."

ENEMY GOT AWAY

"In the end, I regret to say, they succeeded in leaving us—the firing ceased at 25,000 yards, when they became invisible," Churchill said.

Churchill added that messages from the Renown broke off at the moment that "they became interesting" and "we've never heard another word until a few hours ago."

A very determined attack was made on Wednesday by two waves of Royal Air Force planes of 12 planes each, Churchill said, in which two German cruisers were attacked and "one has not been seen since."

He said that on Monday morning it seemed as though the German forces which "had sunk the Glowworm would be caught between THEATER OF WAR—Highlights of lightning war in Scandinavia are shown in this map . . . as (1) Oslo faces British shelling if Nazis fail to surrender. Ports of Trondheim and Bergen (2) reported recaptured by British. Heavy naval action in Skagerrak (3), with multiple ship losses. Narvik (4) now in British hands. Nazi advance resisted by Norwegians (5). British repel Nazi plane attacks (6). British planes scout Norway coast (7). Danish island of Bornholm (8) occupied by Nazis. Hamar (9) reoccupied by Norwegians.

18 NAZI SHIPS SUNK IN SEA BATTLE, REYNAUD REVEALS

PARIS, April 11 (AP)—Premier Reynaud today declared that eight German warships, including four cruisers, and 10 Nazi troopships had been sunk in the naval battles in Norwegian waters in which the Allies lost four vessels.

The premier listed the losses before the Chamber of Deputies without naming the boats, as follows: Four cruisers, representing one-tenth of the total German fleet tonnage; two small warships, one submarine, one destroyer and 10 transports.

The British lost four destroyers, Reynaud said, of which two went down in the fighting off Narvik.

There were no French losses, he added, and disclosed that one Polish ship was fighting with the Allied forces.

BULLETIN

BERLIN, April 11 (AP)—The high command announced today that German troops had occupied the Danish Baltic island of Bornholm without difficulty. The island lies about 25 miles off the southern tip of Sweden.

LONDON, April 11 (INS)—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said today that all was reported quiet off the western coast of Sweden (in the Skagerrak-Kattegat area) at 10:30 a. m. (4:30 a. m. E. S. T.)

Faroe Isles Taken Over By Britain

LONDON, April 11 (INS)—Great Britain is occupying the Faroe islands, Danish possessions north of Scotland, First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill announced in Commons today.

The status of Iceland, which had been under sovereignty of the Danish crown, but which has now taken over its own governmental prerogatives, "needs further consideration," Churchill said.

The Faroes will be handed back, Churchill said, "when Denmark is liberated from the foul thralldom into which she has been plunged by German aggression."

Churchill made clear that "no German will be allowed to set foot in Iceland," indicating an airtight British blockade of the island.

Britons Jeer At German Uneasiness

LONDON, April 11 (INS)—British press dispatches jeered today at the uneasiness displayed by the German public over outcome of the mighty battle raging in the North sea.

Reuter's and Exchange Telegraph dispatches from Amsterdam said the German nervousness was manifested as anxious German crowds snatched each new edition of newspapers and camped permanently outside the chancellery in Berlin, where constant official conferences were in progress.

Turkey Tones Down Attacks on Germany

ISTANGUL, April 11 (AP)—Turkey suddenly adopted a policy of greater caution toward Germany today as the authorities ordered the press to discontinue bitter attacks on the Reich.

Official quarters asserted that Turkey's basic policy of friendship toward Britain and France was unchanged, but they stressed that the alliance with the Allies was designed to bring Turkey into the war only if its own security were threatened.

Norway Calls More Troops As Nazis Are Driven Back

NORWEGIAN PORT OF TONSBERG
Now Occupied by Germans

STOCKHOLM, April 11 (INS) — Norway mobilized another army division today and embarked upon full military cooperation with Great Britain after reporting ouster of German invaders from a number of strategic key-points. The military situation late today appeared to be as follow:

The Norwegian commander at Bergen has reported that seaport recaptured from German invaders. The city of Hamar, chosen as Norway's capital after the fall of Oslo, has also been reported retaken by Norse troops.

Other sources reported German planes have circled the Kongsvinger railway station dropping light bombs.

The city of Narvik has been recaptured by the Norwegians and the Nazi invaders reported in retreat along that part of the front.

Announcement of Norway's latest successes in counteracting the lightning German invasion was made by Carl J. Hambro, president of the Norwegian Parliament, who is now in Stockholm.

After talking with members of his government by telephone, Hambro announced the commander of Norwegian forces in the north had been authorized to mobilize the Sixth Division and to contact Great Britain's forces "at the earliest possible moment" for joint action against the Nazis.

Describing the government's escape from Oslo, he said a special train carrying the king, cabinet and most of parliament was bombed near a military airport but that no troops had been seen en route.

The Storting met at Hamar, Hambro said, with only five of its 150 members absent.

NORGE SAVE GOLD

Fleeing from Oslo, he said, the Norwegians managed to take the gold reserves of the Bank of Norway as well as stores of gasoline, oil and corn.

He said 1000 Germans were landed by airplane at the Oslo civil airport and that they later were reinforced.

Before the fight for Oslo was given up in order to avoid making the capital a battleground, Hambro said, four German airplanes were shot down by anti-aircraft batteries.

Norwegian planes had left for the interior of the country before the Germans arrived.

About 5000 Germans were landed

RUSSIAN TROOPS REPORTED MOVING TOWARD RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, April 11 (AP)—Large numbers of Soviet Russian troop reinforcements were reported today to have moved into the Odessa region from the north. Odessa, on the Black Sea, lies about 25 miles from the Rumanian Bessarabia border.

The reports, reaching this capital from the frontier region, could not be confirmed on this side of the border.

(Russia lost Bessarabia to Rumania in the post-world war territorial changes and has never renounced her claim to it.)

The advices pictured the Russian forces as veteran troops, many of whom had fought in Finland.

Meanwhile the Rumanian government issued a decree that all national defense factories must immediately store supplies for use in case of general mobilization.

Supplies must be sufficient for 15 days, the decree said.

START SEED EMBARGO

At the same time an embargo was put on export of sunflower seeds to Germany, which previously has bought almost the entire Rumanian crop to replace her deficiency in fats.

The government issued a formal denial of what it called "wild reports" that three German-bound Danube river freight boats had been sunk by explosions.

The freely-expressed fear in the Balkans that Germany might move into southeastern Europe was heightened by the comments of numerous British and French officials in the Near East that Allied forces were unable—at present—to resist effectively.

These officials said the British-French armies in the Levant were strong enough to defend that area but were not yet prepared for any major expedition away from their bases.

They said the largest force which could be sent out of Palestine, Syria and Egypt was 200,000, small compared with the army Germany could place in the Balkans, and that transport facilities were insufficient. Allied air forces in the Near East are not large enough, they said.

Rumanian and Yugoslav governments were reported by usually reliable sources today to have agreed on German insistence to call all their Danube river pilots for military service.

This action would void contracts which many Rumanian and Yugoslav rivermen signed with British and French agents and make them available for assignment to German Danube shipping by military command.

Pershing in Hospital For Medical Checkup

WASHINGTON, April 11 (INS)—Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary force in the World War, is in the Army-Navy Hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., for a periodical check-up, his office here said today.

The general, who will be 80 years old next September, is in good condition, his military aide said, and is expected to come to Washington by May 1.

SUE R. I. GOVERNOR, PHONE CO.

PROVIDENCE, April 11—While Sheriff John J. Kelly today set out to serve a writ for a $500,000 damage suit on Gov. William H. Vanderbilt, political enemies abandoned attempts at impeachment based on the governor's announcement he hired wire-tapping detectives.

The suit, together with another for $500,000 against the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., was filed by Edward L. Freeman, wealthy Pawtucket stationer and Republican leader. He was recently cleared in district court of charges he aided in the wire-tapping.

The impeachment attempt was made by Rep. Farrell Sylvester, Republican, of Providence. It failed immediately because, under the late-session rule, only one objection is needed to kill consideration, and that came from Rep. George Whitman of Cranston, a Republican.

Another result of the Governor's announcement he personally hired the detective agency which allegedly tapped the telephone wires of Mayor Thomas P. McCoy of Pawtucket and Atty.-Gen. Louis V. Jackvony was a resolution passed by the Pawtucket aldermen calling for prosecution of persons connected with wire-tapping.

In Washington, Senator Stewart of the committee investigating tapping of wires, asked the department of justice for all its information on the case. Previously, U. S. Atty.-Gen. Robert H. Jackson had ordered the government's investigation dropped.

Machine Gun Gang Seizes $11,500 in Connecticut Holdup

NEW BRITAIN, Ct., April 11—Manchine-gun bandits held up an American Railway Express Co, employe here today, handcuffed him to a door and escaped with $16,000 in Federal Reserve currency, fighting off a police cruising car as they fled.

The audacious robbery was staged with Wild West drama and boldness in the New Haven railroad station by a five-man gang.

The money seized was in two metal strong baxes just unloaded from a Boston-Waterbury train.

HANDCUFFED TO DOOR

Express Company Station Agent Fred Tormay was the man overpowered by the bandits. They tied him up, sealed his mouth with tape, then used a handcuff to fasten him by a leg to the door of his office.

The gang roared away in a black sedan bearing New Jersey license plates.

At Hartford, a lone police officer in a cruising car attempted to halt the bandit auto as it careened at reckless speed through a parkway.

BANDITS OPEN FIRE

The fleeing robbers opened fire with a machine-gun on the pursuing officer, Patrolman Homer Gaonette.

He risked his life by continuing the chase, but was outdistanced by the gangsters' more powerful machine.

Bridges, ferries and main highways were guarded all the way from New York city to the Canadian border.

According to Railway Express officials, one of the stolen strong boxes contained $500, the other $11,000. Both were consigned to New Britain banks.

Best description available of the bandit car said it was a 1940 Buick sedan.

SHIFTED AUTO PLATES

Observers disagreed about its registration plates, these being identified as of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. Police believe the bandits probably had several sets and shifted them before and after the robbery.

EX-WIFE AND HOTZE IN TRUCE

Joseph (Hoodsie) Hotze, one-time number pool baron, emerged briefly today from East Cambridge jail, where he is serving a sentence of a year, and appeared in Suffolk Probate Court to answer his former wife's charge that he was $600 in arrears in alimony payments.

Dapper and apparently in good health, Hotze, who was brought from jail on a habeas corpus writ, was greeted by his ex-wife in a friendly way and after he had conferred with her and their daughter it was announced the case had been continued indefinitely.

NOT HANDCUFFED

On March 26 last Mrs. Selma Hotze of Revere filed a petition in Suffolk Probate Court asking that Hotze be ordered to appear and show cause why he should not be held in contempt for failing to obey a previous order to pay her $50 a week for the support of herself and daughter.

Hotze, who was sentenced to serve one year in jail and pay a fine of $10,000 on a charge of setting up and promoting a lottery, was not handcuffed when brought to court.

EX-WIFE HOLDS HIS HAND

He appeared to be in the best of spirits, posing readily for cameramen and discussing his sentence freely. He said that the confinement bothered him, after having served three months.

"You've only got a year to do," a reporter offered, to which Hotze replied: "Only a year? It seems like I have served 10 years already."

Mrs. Hotze, who was accompanied by her daughter, met her former husband outside the courtroom and held his hand while she talked with him. After their conversation there was a conference of counsel with Judge John V. Mahoney, after which the clerk announced continuance of the case.

Halts Own Funeral, Finds Corpse His Pal

PITTSBURGH, April 11 (AP)—Roger Martin Feeney doubted reports that funeral services were being held for him and went to a mortuary to investigate.

Sure enough the rites were under way but the 54-year-old Feeney quickly called a halt, viewed the body and declared, "why, it's my friend Arthur Rowley."

The coroner's office said the two men's papers, including their social security cards, had been mixed, leading to the incorrect identification.

Seize Four in Payroll Holdup

Four Charlestown men were arrested by Cambridge police today as the men who participated in the daylight holdup of the Specialty Shoe Manufacturing Co., Lechmere sq., Cambridge, in which a $1230 payroll was taken.

Capt. John J. Canney of Cambridge police said he recovered $705 in cash, including 296 pennies—the exact number taken in the holdup—and a slip of paper on which the figure 1230—the amount of the payroll—had been divided by the figure four. Canney said a gun used in the holdup was recovered.

Booked on a charge of armed robbery, the four gave the names of Francis Dower, 23; Manuel Ragua, 27, and William Carroll, 24, all of a Main st. rooming house, and Charles Williams, 24, of Bunker Hill st.

ATTACK STORY — Irma Agatha Weber, 18, is shown as she told Los Angeles court she was attacked by religious cult leader, Henry Sorge, when she was 11. She's suing leaders of cult for $1,000,000.

Bridegroom Found Shot in East Boston

With a pearl-handled revolver by his side, a 25-year-old East Boston bridegroom—wed only last Sunday—was found shot through the head today in a barricaded room in Liverpool st., East Boston.

Police said the wound was self-inflicted.

The victim, Vito Puma, a fisherman, was rushed to City Hospital, where surgeons hoped to save his life by blood transfusions and a delicate brain operation.

First to volunteer as a blood donor was Puma's attractive young dark-haired bride, Mrs. Santa Puma, formerly of Brooklyn, N. Y.

WORRIED OVER HEALTH

She and Puma's East Boston relatives told police he had been worried about his health and in a highly nervous condition.

Mrs. Puma said her husband cut short their New York honeymoon because he was stricken with an attack of a chronic illness.

The shooting occurred in the Liverpool st. home of Puma's stepfather, Peter Meone. The newlyweds were staying there temporarily while their new apartment, also in Liverpoolst., was being furnished.

Young Mrs. Puma said she was in her bedroom, dressing, when she heard a gunshot.

DOOR BARRICADED

Running to the bathroom, where she supposed her hsuband was shaving, she found the door jammed.

Aided by a brother-in-law, Joseph Puma, 19, the frightened bride finally forced entry to the room, which had been barricaded by an ironing board jammed under the door knob.

Puma was lying in a pool of blood, apparently lifeless.

Police said later the gun was one belonging to Meona, Puma's stepfather.

Puma and his Brooklyn bride, who is 21, were married at Brooklyn, Sunday, April 7.

"Chloe Has Pigtails" --- The Enigma of a Strange Child

By Adela Rogers St. Johns

How are the courts to handle the great problem growing out of the murders in the Davis home and the little, pig-tailed, 11-year-old girl, Chloe? Adela Rogers St. John's, one of the nation's foremost writers covering this case exclusively for the Los Angeles Examiner and Boston Evening American, touches on these questions in the following article.

By ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS

Special to Boston Evening American

LOS ANGELES, April 11—Across a desk in a small, sunlit room, two men faced each other. The stooping, exhausted man was the father of 11-year-old Chloe Davis, and his dark eyes were a plea, his trembling voice a prayer.

The handsome, gray-haired man was the judge of the juvenile court, Turney Fox, and upon his face was a great and honest compassion.

Chloe was not there at the informal meeting in the judge's chambers of the juvenile court, where Barton Davis made and won his pitiful battle. Yet you seemed to see her all the time, her small stocky figure standing between the two men who in grief and pity sought to find for her a means of salvation and protection.

DAD BADLY SHAKEN

If you had been there today and seen Barton Davis, you must have felt as I did. Somehow, for a little time, you almost forgot about Chloe and the problem she presents. You forgot everything except this tired man, fighting as great a fight as any man ever fought—fighting to keep himself in hand, fighting to stay on his feet, holding himself upright from complete collapse for Chloe's sake.

We stood together a moment before we went into the judge's chamber. He looked flushed and shaken with pain.

"You see—I had other things to do today," he said. "I—I had to go and make arrangements about—about the services for Lo and the other children. That's—that's hard to do, always, I suppose.

"Seemed for a while as though I just couldn't go on any longer. But there isn't anything I can do for them now. They're gone. I know her mother would want just one thing. Just one thing. For me to take care of Chloe. And that's why I'm here.

"That's what I'm going to tell the judge. I want my little girl away from everything but just kindness and love for a little while, I've got to have her with me. Her mother wouldn't ever forgive me, if I didn't take care of her now. Lo always took such good care of Chloe."

He sat down opposite the judge, and I've never seen a man in such suspense and tension. It vibrated through the small room.

Then, in an instant, there seemed to be just the two men in the room, the father and the judge. And you got the strangest feeling that the judge was—it's hard to explain—but that he was a father, too, that it was his business; there was a juvenile court judge to take care of Chloe's future, too—to find out what was best for the child.

KEPT AS JUDGE'S WARD

I knew then that he was going to give Barton Davis the only consolation and help that could be given. That for the time Chloe was to be kept as the judge's ward, the ward of the juvenile court, but that she was to be allowed to go with her father, to a place where the experts of the juvenile court could work with her quietly, could study her, talk with her, find out what happened to that child mind.

CHLOE DAVIS

I have been in the home where Chloe is going. It's bright and clean and pretty. It's a good American home—not an institution. It's a place any little girl would love to be and there she will have her father with her and other friends who have loved her dearly ever since she was a baby.

There she will have gentle, motherly care and in time, we shall know all the truth about Chloe Davis, all the truth about what this thing has done to her, what happened on that morning to send her into a state that permitted her to do the things she says she did.

That, the juvenile authorities feel, is the important thing. That is the social problem with which they have to deal. No one could have felt that it would be right to release the child entirely, to let her go through the coming weeks when memory begins to function again, without some expert help.

Yet knowing Barton Davis as I have come to know him, I can't help but be glad clear through that she is to be with him. For her sake as well as his own.

HER STORY HAUNTING

I have been trying to find the answer to this incredible story of Chloe's. Like everyone else who has come in contact with the case, the authorities, the probation officers, the police, the juvenile court experts, I have been haunted by it. You don't seem able to get away from it—you walk with it and wake up in the night thinking about it.

The crime with which Chloe Davis, 11 years old, is still charged is assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit bodily harm.

The crime is that she struck her little brother with a hammer—because, she says, her mother told her to do it. She must stand before the bar of justice at an inquest—that one more chapter of terror she must know.

But it seems to me that Judge Turney Fox was sane and wise when he sent her home with her father for a time.

Her father is, as the judge thought, the best one to help, his presence will be the most natural thing of all—and get her to the place where the juvenile experts can do what they must do.

(Acting on advice of Judge Fox, Chloe did not attend funeral services for her mother, two sisters.)

Ex-Crew Star Heads House

Dr. Elliott Perkins, former Crimson oarsman, was named today as master of Lowell House, swank Harvard upper class dormitory.

He succeeds Prof. Julian C. Coolidge, who retired after holding the position since establishment of the Harvard house system in 1930. The appointment is one regarded as a high honor for any Harvard faculty member.

Also announced today was Dr. Perkins' promotion from instructor and tutor in history and literature to the rank of lecturer in history.

A native of Massachusetts and a graduate of Milton Academy, Perkins was a member of the Harvard class of 1923. He rowed with the varsity 150-pound crew.

He won his master's degree at Harvard in 1928, his Ph. D. in history in 1936.

100 Needham Pupils Strike Over Busses

More than 100 senior and junior high and grammar school students went on strike at Needham today in protest against a change in school bus service.

The pupils paraded around a stalled bus with signs reading: "What? A Hitler in Needham?" and "No bus, no books."

The students were not brought under control until police were called.

On Monday service was changed from the Middlesex and Boston Railway Co. buses to the Modern Bus Lines.

Students said that formerly they were treated as regular paying passengers, and that buses ran every half hour.

PICKET BUS

Now, they claim, there is only one bus to take them to their homes, some of them four miles distant in East and North Needham. This bus leaves the high school at 2:30, just 15 minutes after the school session ends.

Students who make up work or engage in extra-curricular activities such as athletics are obliged to walk home.

Authorities insist buses are run afternoons at 2:30 and 3:30, and will be run at 4:30.

Today students refused to board a bus at Reservoir and Central aves., North Needham, picketing it and hooting:

"Chickencoop bus! Old chickencoop!"

The boys started a baseball game that was not ended until 10:15 when two cruiser cars loaded with Needham officers arrived and the policemen threatened to take the youths to Dedham court.

MANY GO HOME

A score of boys and girls returned home.

The students claim that the 'chickencoop bus" is so old the driver is unable to stop for a railroad grade crossing on the way to school because then he would be unable to make a slight hill beyond the crossing.

Yesterday the students refused to get out of one of the buses, claiming it had stopped too far—300 or 400 feet from the school building—and the driver had to call police to get them out.

Retired Wellesley Professor Dies

A graduate of Wellesley, Miss Kendrick received M. A. and Ph.D. degrees from Boston University and also studied in Berlin. She served as professor of Biblical history at Wellesley from 1906 until 1931.

Boston Taxpayers Hear Tobey Blast New Deal Spending Policy

New Deal taxation, spending and law-making policies lay bare today under blasting attack by U. S. Sen. Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire, the speaker in Tremont Temple before 3000 members of the Boston Taxpayers Alliance.

Among his shots directed at the administration:

"There would be an uprising in America if people realized how government bureaus have assumed power and issued statutes that have the force of law."

"We hear protest over direct taxes, but the public is totally unconscious over millions collected in hidden taxes."

"Even the man who makes $1000 pays at least 15 to 20 per cent of his income in taxes."

"This government now has 3000 paid propagandists whose job it is to smear and smirch those who oppose fallacious government bureaus."

"Don't worry about Hitler and Stalin . . . we should be more concerned about what we are allowing our government to do to us from within."

"In this fiscal year, the government is collecting from the people 109 million dollars a week and spending 175 millions a week."

"In the last eight years we have spent 66 billions of dollars . . . the same amount spent by 28 Presidents in 131 years from Washington through the Wilson administration."

"It is a chronic weakness of the American people that they put too much faith in legislation . . . we can't avert fate or postpone doomsday by an act of Congress."

Throughout his address the New Hampshire Senator warned that present national policies will lead eventually to national bankruptcy.

OTHER SPEAKERS

Other speakers at the mass meeting were Atty. Richard J. Lane, of Brighton, former member of the Boston school committee and president of the Taxpayers Alliance; Gleason L. Archer, president of Suffolk University; Thomas R. Fynn, secretary of the Apartment House Owners Association and James Dempsey, director of the taxpayer group's membership campaign.

Lane urged that the state take over the entire cost of public welfare in Boston and relieve real estate "which no longer can continue to pay 70 per cent of a 15 million dollar welfare and relief roll; a $2,000,000 a year El deficit and a $400,000 annual Sumner tunnel deficit."

VALUATIONS HIT

"In Boston we have an assessed valuation of about $1,500,000,000 of property," he said. "Based on market prices, true valuations are far less than one billion dollars. The burden of welfare is not local and should be assumed by the state and distributed equitably so that Boston's rich dormitory towns should bear their share."

President Archer urged the formation of a statewide militant group of citizens to counteract "pressure groups treading the political road to ruin."

"Let us not kid ourselves into believing that the great electorate always makes wise decisions," he stated. "The pressure groups are in great measure responsible for this attitude. They have deluded the public into thinking that the State is like a great gold vein with an inexhaustible supply for the shiftless."

Dempsey warned that political interests are planning to block the taxpayers' attempts to organize.

MAINE METHODISTS MEET

AUBURN, Me., April 11—With more than 1000 delegates attending, the Maine Methodist Conference today went into the second day of its six-day session, the first to be held since the three branches of Methodism were united at the 1939 national conference.

CONGRESS FACES CUT IN CENSUS

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—The House gingerly took up today a decennial bugaboo—a bill providing for reapportionment of its members on the basis of the new census.

The measure, by Rep Warren (D.) of North Carolina, would be a political death sentence for some representatives from states which lose in population and which therefore would be allotted fewer members.

Those seats would go to states which gain in population so that the House membership would continue at 435.

One argument of proponents for bringing up the legislation now is that it will be easier to pass before the census returns show which states will lose.

The Senate was considering a bill to reimburse cotton co-operative associations for losses incurred when the Hoover farm board attempted to support the cotton market in 1929-30.

Most congressmen regarded the legislative program as well on its way toward completion, although there appeared to be doubt whether controversial amendments to the Wagner Act could be debated in time for an early June adjournment.

Some Republicans were demanding that Congress remain on the job to see that the United States does not become involved in the European war, but administration leaders ignored this viewpoint as they went ahead with plans to wind up the session shortly after June 1.

Sheriff Keeps Job Despite Indictments

WORCESTER, April 11 — Brushing aside nine indictments charging bribery, 63-year-old Sheriff H. Oscar Rocheleau, Worcester county Democrat, remained on the job here today—declaring there was nothing in the statutes which demanded his resignation.

The sheriff stated his plea of not guilty spoke for itself and that he would continue to perform the duties of his office.

DEPUTIES INDICTED

Indicted with the sheriff and arraigned with him immediately thereafter, were two of his deputies: Herbert Salisbury Buss, deputy master at the County Jail, and Hugo N. Peterson, clerk to the sheriff.

Seventy-three individual counts were returned against the sheriff, and 71 counts were returned against him and the two deputies in four joint indictments, by a grand jury which had been conducting a secret probe since April 1.

All three defendants waived the reading of the indictments and pleaded not guilty, the sheriff being held in $5000 and the two deputies in $2500 each. Judge David F. Dillon allowed counsel in each case 20 days to file pleadings. Bail was furnished in each case.

The indictments charge gifts were accepted by the sheriff since 1935 including gifts from 36 special deputy sheriffs who did patrol duty outside the plant of the Barre Wool Combing Co., in South Barre, during the strike—disorders of last August.

ALLEGE GRATUITIES

Two indictments brought against Sheriff Rocheleau contained 34 and 35 counts respectively, made on complaints of former Deputy Arthur S. Keefe, of Oxford, who was dropped on Jan. 31, 1939. It was alleged the sheriff accepted gifts and gratuities from Keefe on consideration that he would make a particular appointment.

Sheriff Rocheleau was charged jointly with Buss and Peterson with one count of conspiracy, one count of conspiring to take bonuses, and two counts of conspiracy to bribe.

The indictments alleged that "gratuities had been accepted from deputies since 1935" as "bonuses, presents and rewards."

Sheriff Rocheleau, who was born in Worcester and attended the public schools and Holy Cross College, was Worcester license commissioner from 1913 to 1917, and was elected alderman-at-large in 1930.

In April of 1932, he was named by former Gov. Joseph B. Ely to succeed Sheriff Albert F. Richardson, who died in office, and was elected sheriff the following November, being re-elected in 1938.

F. D. Acts to Prevent Nazi Grab Of Scandinavian Funds in U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—The United States took unprecedented action today to assure Norway and Denmark on the safety of their several hundred million dollars in holdings in this country.

Forestalling any possible German attempt to confiscate this rich store of foreign exchange for the Nazi war chest, President Roosevelt by executive order prohibited the removal from America of any Danish and Norwegian assets, monetary or otherwise.

He took this step late yesterday, shortly after he extended the combat zone of European waters from which American ships are banned.

He added not only the whole Norwegian coast but also the Russian ports of Murmansk and Archangel and the Finnish harbor of Petsamo, where the Soviets have special privileges under the recent peace treaty. Waters around the British Isles, France, The Netherlands, Belgium and Germany previously were closed.

CALL BACK SHIPS

Three ships headed for Norway were called back from mid-ocean, and simultaneous efforts were instituted to get three others out of the perilous Scandinavian ports where the "blitzkrieg" trapped them.

Two important government decisions were held in abeyance pending more complete information from the war zone. The first was the question whether Denmark and Norway should be formally designated belligerents under the Neutrality Act, and made subject to its cash-and-carry provisions.

The second concerned the policy to be adopted regarding $20,000,000 in credits recently granted the two countries.

President Roosevelt's sweeping order protecting Danish-Norwegian investments here covered both the governments and citizens of the nations as of April 8, or before the Nazi invasion.

MUST REPORT FUNDS

It stipulated that no holdings could be removed from the United States except with a special license from the Treasury. The order was phrased in such a way, however, that Danes and Norwegians residing here would be able to use personal bank accounts unimpeded.

The treasury promptly issued instructions for all holders of Danish or Norwegian wealth in this country to report it for an accounting.

The exact value of the holdings involved was not known, but New York financial circles estimated that the Scandinavian countries, Sweden included, had several hundred million dollars to their credit in really transferable assets. "Earmarked" gold and short-term balances were said to account for most of it.

CONGRESS MUST STAY ---LODGE

WASHINGTON, April 11 (INS)—Demands that Congress stay in session throughout the European war emergency—no matter how long it lasts—were sounded on both sides of Capitol Hill today.

Sens. Lodge (R.) of Massachusetts, Capper (R.) of Kansas and Nye (R.) of North Dakota made the appeal in the Senate; Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers (R.) of Massachusetts led the movement in the House.

The demands ran counter to leadership plans for a June 1 adjournment, but the GOP leaders insisted that as long as a critical situation exists in Europe, the welfare of America calls for Congress to stay on the job.

"Congress should be here, national conventions or no national conventions, to watch over this country's foreign policy and to guard against any moves that might drag us into the conflict," said Nye.

"We must maintain American neutrality, and Congress should be here to see that no moves are made away from that stand," Capper declared.

Rationing of Food Hits Denmark Hard

COPENHAGEN, April 11 (AP)—Denmark, rich breadbasket of Scandinavia, felt the pinch of a nation on a wartime basis today as the German occupation brought mounting restrictions and signs of more to come.

With the sale of food restricted to four days' supply and all private automobiles banned from the roads after 7 o'clock at night, the government party newspaper Social Democraten predicted:

"We will have to miss coal and gasoline and, still more, there will be a shortage of many other goods."

A regulation which hit beer-drinking Danes hard was that prohibiting alcoholic beverages. Its aim, apparently, was to help avoid any clashes between Danish citizens and German soldiers, for Denmark has plentiful supplies of beer.

CONSERVE OIL

Another prohibition stopped Denmark's streamlined, oil-burning train as an oil conservation measure.

While many Danes took the occupation of their country imperturbably, the war that has caught them up was brought home with full force by air raid restrictions which blacked out this once gay northern capital.

Evidence of the thoroughness of German preparations was seen in the sudden appearance of hundreds of shaded blackout street lamps similar to those used in Berlin.

Many restaurants shut long before their usual midnight closing time because their customers dwindled and, with the sale of alcohol prohibited, most nightspots were closed altogether.

REQUISITION SCHOOLS

Outwardly, there were few indications of the presence of German troops, although certain sections of Copenhagen were blocked off and, it was announced, two schoolhouses had been requisitioned for barracks.

Peaceful resignation of the Danes to the situation and general quiet throughout the country contrasted strangely with the barrage of radio and press reports of violent sea and air battles in areas near this kingdom.

There were reports of a naval engagement between the British and Germans off northeast Jutland. German dispatches told of other engagements off the Norwegian coast.

DOWN 19 NAZI PLANES

LONDON, April 11 (AP)—Nineteen German aircraft have been destroyed by the British Royal Air Force since Sunday, while the British have lost only six planes in the same period, it was announced officially today.

Seven German bombers were shot down over Scapa Flow last night, the announcement stated, and these were included in the list of German losses.

British losses consisted of one reconnaissance plane, three bombers and two pursuit craft, it stated.

A British communique said that since early Sunday all commands of the Royal Air Force have been engaged intensively in operations against the enemy, it added.

"On Sunday a bombing attack was launched against a strong enemy naval force off Harm's reef. On Monday they carried out extensive reconnaissance flights and repelled an attack on Scapa Flow, shooting down five German planes.

"Throughout Tuesday they were engaged in reporting the position of enemy warships in Norwegian waters and in the evening bombed and sank a German cruiser off Bergen.

"Wednesday fighting planes reconnoitered Norwegian aerodromes occupied by the enemy.

CHURCHILL TELLS OF BATTLE AT SEA

our forces in the north and the main home fleet, both of which were superior to it. However, they got away."

A torpedo carrying aircraft of the fleet's air arm "attacked enemy shipping in the harbor of Trondheim," Churchill disclosed.

"I look forward to making another statement to Parliament very shortly," the first lord said.

Seven men—four officers and three sailors—were injured when a bomb hit the flagship Rodney, whose "heavy" armament deflected the blow," Churchill disclosed.

"So far as the structure of our ships of war is concerned," he said "the incident must be regarded as satisfactory."

LAUDS NAVAL FORCES

In recounting the tale of the British destroyers' attack on the Germans in Narvik Churchill said the fighting was "worthy of any in British naval records."

"The destruction of store ships, crippling of the destroyer force and blowing up of a munition ship which was perhaps intended to turn Narvik into a Sebastapol or Gibraltar has simplified the task which obviously might be among those which lie ahead," Churchill said.

Churchill also disclosed there were no casualties on the Renown although a shell had passed "through our ship above the water line without bursting."

Churchill said something similar happened to the Exeter and showed "all Nazi workmanship is of a piece."

"A shell also went through the Renown's foremast, carrying away the main aerial," Churchill added.

LITTLE DAMAGE IN RAIDS

Churchill said that 60 German aircraft attacked Scapa Flow last night "without doing the slightest damage.

"The enemy lost six aircraft," he added, and then thundered:

"We are ready to fight this matter out at Scapa Flow."

Churchill said a cruiser was hit in the first air raid on Scapa Flow which "necessitated several weeks of repair, but no more than that."

Since then "up to the moment at which I am speaking there has been no vessel hit or damaged at Scapa and no objective of the slightest military importance has been hit."

Of the 15 torpedo-carrying aircraft which attacked at Trondheim Church said all returned. When reconnaissance craft went to the scene "no cruiser was seen. Where one had been there was only a half-mile long streak of oil. It looks as if the result had been obtained."

"We had hoped to catch a Hipper class cruiser which was reported to be there," the first lord said, "but all we caught was a destroyer which was hit by a torpedo."

Churchill Talk Jammed on Air

NEW YORK, April 11 (INS)—The United States was effectively shut off by air today from oral reception of the House of Commons address of Winston Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty.

At 10:15 a. m. (E. S. T.), when a British broadcasting station began to tell of Churchill's assertions, the London short wave was suddenly "jammed" by an unidentified foreign station.

Earlier, news reports from the British station also had been subjected to the jamming technique which prevented American audiences from hearing them. Only the Churchill address and the news broadcasts were so affected, other talk and music coming through undisturbed.

HITLER MOVE NAPOLEONIC BLUNDER, SAYS CHURCHILL

LONDON, April 11 (AP)—Winston Churchill today told the House of Commons "great losses have been suffered by the German navy" in a continuing air and naval battle launched by Germany's invasion of Norway.

"We have greatly gained by what has occurred in Scandinavia and northern waters in the strategic and military sense," he said.

"Hitler has made as great a strategic and political error as Napoleon when he invaded Spain.

"At the present nearly a dozen ships, some of large tonnage, have been sunk or captured either in the Skagerrak or the Kattegat or in attempting to bring supplies to forces landed at Narvik," Churchill declared.

WILL SINK ALL SHIPS

The hard-hitting Churchill proclaimed to the House that "all German ships in the Skaggerak and the Kattegat will be sunk."

He contended that by invading Norway "Hitler has doubled the efficiency of the Allied blockade.

"We have suffered from nothing in our blockade so much as from the accursed (Norwegian) corridor now closed forever.

"We shall takew what we want of this Norwegian coast now with an enormous increase in the efficiency of our blockade."

Churchill warned that "Hitler has created a whole series of commitments on the Norwegian coast" for which he now will have to fight against the Allies who have "vastly superior naval forces and are able to transport them to the scenes of action more easily than he can."

"The very recklessness with which Hitler and his advisers have cast the fate of the German navy upon wild waters" may be a prelude to "far larger events" which depend on the land, Churchill said.

"We have probably arrived at the first crunch of the war," he added.

British submarines are "by no means asleep," Churchill said, for they "have taken a heavy toll" of German transport troop ships crossing to Scandinavia.

WILL ACHIEVE VICTORY

"We are not going to let the enemy supply their troops along those waters with impunity," he declared.

Speaking again of the Norwegian occupation, he said:

"I cannot see any counter advantage which he (Hitler) has gained except the satisfaction of another exercise of brutal lust, of unbridled power.

As the House cheered, Churchill observed: "e certainly find no reason to deter us from entering on any further perils that might lie before us."

"We feel ready to encounter the utmost malice of the enemy and to achieve a ready victory in what is a world cause."

"There has been no greater impediment in the blockade of Germany than the Norwegian corridor," Churchill said, after remarking that Denmark had special "reasons for apprehension, not only because she was nearest and weakest but because she sad a recent treaty with Germany guaranteeing her from all molestation."

"His Majesty's government have been extremely reluctant" to incur reproaches for even tetchnical violations of international law, but it had been decided "at last" to interrupt the Norwegian ore traffic and "make it come out in the open sea," Churchill went on.

"If the Norwegian government had not ben so very strict and severe in enforcing her neutrality against us," he pursued, "it would have been very easy to give them more timely and more support than is now possible."

He charged that German invasion had been "long and elaborately prepared" against a number of small countries, and it was only in the small hours of Monday that it was learned "that Norway and Denmark had drawn the unlucky numbers in this sinister lottery."

"It is not the slightest use blaming the Allies for not being able to give substantial protection to neutral countries when we are held at arm's length by those countries until they are actually attacked on a scientifically prepared plan by Germany," he said.

Up to then, he said, the British navy was forced to watch "an endless procession" of German and neutral ships which respect for international law forbade them to touch.

He added that Germany "flouted" those same conventions in this war as in the last and had tried to make out "the invasion of Norway and Denmark was a consequence of our act in closing this corridor."

He declared that during the last war the British, French and United States governments "induced" Norwegians to mine their territorial waters to prevent abuse by submarines.

SYMPATHY FOR NORSE

"We have the most profound sympathy with the Norwegian people," the first lord affirmed, and promised aid to "the best of our ability" since "their future and independence are bound up with the victory of the Allies."

Churchill stressed that it was "intolerable" to the Allies to watch ships passing down "the Norwegian corridor" carrying iron ore to make shells which would "strike down the young men of France and Britain in the campaign of 1941."

Chamberlain Is Still War Head

LONDON, April 11 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain made it clear in the House of Commons today that he remained the supreme director of Britain's war effort.

He told the House he had agreed to be chairman of the ministerial committee of military co-ordination on exceptional occasions.

First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, as the senior service minister, he said, will preside ordinarily.

NORWAY DOOMED, GERMANS DECLARE

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, April 11—Germany today claimed to hold Norway firmly in its grip despite 48 hours of continuous fighting.

Further negotiations are expected to take place between the Nazi minister to Norway and King Haakon to "clear up German-Norwegian relations."

A German foreign office spokesman denied that negotiations with Norway have been definitely broken off, emphasizing that "negotiations have not yet reached definite results."

"Germany considers the door still wide open," he declared.

The spokesman also stressed that no state of war exists between Norway and the Reich, inasmuch as Norway has not notified Germany to that effect.

German officoals jeered at Allied reports that Torndheim, Bergen and other cities have been recaptured, and that Oslo was threatened with shelling by British warships.

The reports were termed "A systematic campaign of lies intended to stiffen the backs of the Norwegians and cover up annihilating political and military blunders and defeats."

It was emphatically denied that the Reich has sent a note to Sweden demanding free passage for German trops

German authorities proudly claimed that all efforts of the Allied fleets to rescue Norway from German troops so far have failed.

In addition, they claimed, the Anglo-French naval forces have received a severe battering from German air force bombers even before any fighting between Allied and German forces has been launched on the Scandinavian mainland.

The British and French navies according to the Germans, apparently split into three units for a triple dash toward the Norwegian coast with the aim of landing expeditionary forces at one or more points and compelling the Germans to fight it out on Norwegian soil.

BUILDS UP DEFENSE

What hopes the Allies may have of ousting the German forces from their fortified positions are not known in Berlin, but German authorities said they believed the Allies are inclined to discredit the German assertion that the Norwegian coast already has been transformed into an invincible defense position.

Any British force that attempts to land along the Norwegian shores, these quarters said, risks the grave danger of experiencing a "second Gallipoli."

The German navy, it was pointed out, is the smallest unit of the German war machine. Thus whatever losses it may suffer in the major naval action still progressing are not causing undue concern in Berlin.

In any event, it was contended, the final decision with the Allies will be sought elsewhere by Germany, but German sources said the point at present most interesting to Norway, Denmark and Europe's neutral nations is this:

Are the Anglo-French forces capable of carrying out the political promises of the Allies?

Forced to flee her native country as European war centers in Scandinavia, Crown Princess Martha of Norway, today was reported to have crossed the border into Sweden.

BULLETINS

BERLIN, April 11 (INS)—The German government announced today that the luxury liner Bremen, reported by the British press to have been torpedoed, is safe at some undisclosed port.

LONDON, April 11 (AP)—The air ministry announced today that 19 German aircraft have been destroyed by British warplanes since Sunday and that the Royal Air Force has lost only six in that period.

All Neutrals Doomed to War

LONDON, April 11 (INS)—Every small European neutral will be engulfed in the whirlpool of war within six months.

This was the flat statement made today by one of the most important neutral envoys in London, whose name is known throughout the world, but which for reasons of state, cannot be disclosed publicly.

"Probabilities are that Holland and Belgium will be next," he explained.

"Once the Allies succeed in establishing a front in Scandinavia and become deeply involved, then Germany probably will feel compelled to make a lightning stroke in Belgium and Holland."

NORSE RETAKE TOWNS FROM GERMANS

at Bergen, Hambro said, but their progress was stopped as Norwegians increased their defense forces.

Norwegian counter-action along the Narvik railroad was a surprise move, Hambro said, the Germans being thrown back before they could fire a shot.

As a result, he said, German troops in the north now are isolated and cut off from all communications with headquarters except by air.

The first German successes at Narvik were achieved because of an apparent misunderstanding, Hambro disclosed.

TAKE NAZIS BY SURPRISE

Maj. Vikdun Quisling, named by the Nazis as head of a Norwegian puppet government, sent instructions to Col. Sundlo, Norwegian commander at Narvik, to co-operate with the Germans.

Sundlo complied, but a short while later the Norwegian high command supplanted Sundlo with Major Omdahl and ordered the latter to halt the Germans. Omdahl went into action immediately, taking the Germans by surprise. Sundlo was arrested.

In the retaking of Narvik, newspaper reports said retreating German troops attempted to cross the frontier into Sweden aboard a train on the iron ore railway linking Swedish mines and the Norwegian port.

NAZIS IN FLIGHT

According to these accounts, Norwegians ripped the rails out at a point where a derailment would have plunged the Germans to certain death.

Balked, they said, the Germans abandoned the train and scattered through the countryside with Norwegian soldiers in pursuit.

An attempted German attack on Elverum, latest seat of the Norwegian government, was repulsed according to Hambro.

SWEDES ARE PREPARED

Details of the recapture of Hamar were not immediately available but it was clear that loss of the city marked another of the severe blows sustained by the German invaders in the past 24 hours.

The newspaper Tidningen reported from Berlin that Germany has sent 3000 laborers to Denmark and Norway to fortify newly-occupied coastal positions.

Germany, it is said, intends to build a "Gibraltar" on the Danish coast and another on the Norwegian coast as keys to her control of the Kattegat and Skagerrak, the passageways between the Baltic and North seas.

Meanwhile, fearing that its neutrality may be short-lived, Sweden completed preparations for any eventuality.

Reservists flocked to the colors as Swedish government officials reiterated:

"Sweden is determined to defend its independence and integrity."

In Norway King Haakon, who formally refused German demands that he accept the puppet government headed by Quisling, announced in a proclamation that Norway would fight on alongside the Anglo-French Allies.

DISASTER FOR NAZIS

The monarch's proclamation substantiated the one issued by the Norwegian government and added:

"I fully adhere to the government's appeal and am convinced the whole people are with me in the decisions taken."

Fresh disaster struck the German army and navy today when British warships and planes reached the entrance to the Kattegat and destroyed five German troop transports with an undetermined loss of life.

(An International News Service bulletin from London today said British warships have sunk 18 of 20 German troop ships in the Skagerrak.)

Earlier reports that only two transports were sent down were corrected by eye-witnesses at the Swedish harbor of Marstrand, east of the northernmost tip of Denmark.

British Air Scout Says Bergen Dead City

LONDON, April 11 (AP)—British air scouts who flew over Bergen harbor yesterday reported they saw no trace of a German cruiser which was attacked previously by British planes.

An immense patch of oil about a mile long covered the site of the attack, they said.

"Bergen seemed a dead city," said the scouting plane's navigator. "We saw no movement except one or two tugs. No one seemed to take any notice of us. No anti-aircraft defense was encountered."

Reports without official confirmation have said that Bergen was recaptured by the British, apparently after these British scouts made their flight over the Norwegian port.

Hub Jewry to Mark Hecht House Founding

Jewish leaders throughout Greater Boston will join this week with Dorchester and Mattapan residents in celebrating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Hecht Neighborhood House now located in American Legion highway, Dorchester.

The week-long observance will begin Saturday evening. Community night, April 15 will feature addresses by Louis E. Kirstein, president of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies; Mrs. Sally Hecht Ehrlich, niece of Mrs. Lina Hecht, the founder, and Dr. Ben M. Selekman, of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies of Boston.

Miss Golde Bamber, of Los Angeles, who until 10 years ago served as director of the center and Mrs. Helen Saftel, present director who succeeded Miss Bamber, will also speak.

Hecht House is a constituent agency of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies and was founded in 1890 by the late Mrs. Hecht under the name of the Hebrew School for Girls.

It was designed to meet the industrial training, Americanization and recreational needs of Jewish immigrants and originally had small second floor quarters in Hanover st.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record-American Rebus Game is open to all bona fide residents of the New England States, except employes of the Boston Record, the Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, any person acting as a proxy for another, and any person who has won $500 or more in any newspaper contest.

2—Beginning Monday, February 12th, 1940, a Rebus puzzle will be published each weekday in the Boston Record and the Boston American. Contestants may obtain their puzzles from either publication. The six puzzles published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen weekly series. Answers for each week's series of puzzles should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor c/o the Boston Record-American Rebus Game. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One Hundred (100) prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their solutions, achieve the 100 highest scores. No contestant may win more than one prize. Neatness does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize, just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking puzzles and if necessary a second, third or fourth set of tie-breaking puzzles. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants, in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations governing the solution of such tie-breaking puzzles. At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking puzzles without assistance. In the office of the Boston Record or the Boston American, in cases of final ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize, contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of answers with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the contest closes, each individual file will be duly judged.

To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of puzzles and who in all other ways conform to the rules of the contest, the Boston Record-American will present a special series of fifteen original Rebus puzzles created by Harold Hart, foremost puzzle expert.

6—Any person, by entering this contest, agrees to abide by and accept as final the decision of the Boston Record and the Boston American on all matters affecting this contest, including among others, the qualification of contestants, their disqualification at any time for any cause deemed necessary, the application of the rules, the judging of answers, the scoring of solutions, and the interpretation of such instructions (governing individual puzzles) as may be announced by the contest officials. By entering this contest participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record and the Boston American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by name will not be considered eligible for prizes nor will any claims to the ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. The Boston Record and the Boston American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or mislaid delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record-American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American Contest Editor to the Contestant.

Directions On How to Send In Answers

The puzzles are divided into series of six—that is, the six puzzles appearing from Monday through Saturday of each week. This week's series (the Ninth) should be submitted any time before midnight, Saturday, April 20. Subsequent series should similarly be submitted within the week following publication in the Record and American. (You can follow the contest in either paper.)

The Pick of the Pack

If you pick your Ale for real Ale flavor—you'll ask for Hanley's every time.

Because Hanley's is real Ale—brewed for 60 years by the same family—in a brewery where only Ale is brewed—by men with generations of tradition in the art of Ale-brewing behind them.

Ask for the Ale with the true Ale flavor and tang—Hanley's, the pick of the pack. On draught, in bottles, and in cans.

Say HANLEY'S for ALE

Crowed Too Soon

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Those small European nations are disappearing like picnics in the rain.

England may be right about Germany missing the bus but she sure grabbed the bus terminals.

Belgium and Holland are getting ready to dynamite their plumbing and flood their basements. There is no political or ideological problem that 12 feet of the Atlantic will not cure.

P. S.—Checking the primary vote in Illinois and taking the census there, too, looks like a duplication of effort. If there are still five Great Lakes we must endorse honest government.

FALSE TEETH
That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

BURIED in the news, obscured by more spectacular happenings as the belligerent nations abroad struggle for control of the Scandinavian countries' wealth and natural resources, is a pertinent item, which the world can only hope to be false, or at least a grievous exaggeration.

Says the Associated Press in a dispatch from Stockholm:

"Streams of refugees from Denmark crossed Oresund Strait to Sweden, many of them mothers with babies and small children.

"They fled the German occupation in any kind of boat, since the regular ferry traffic was at a standstill.

"Fishermen were asking 200 Swedish crowns, the equivalent of $46 for the trip, which ordinarily costs a half-crown, or 12 cents."

WAR ZONE REFUGEE AND CHILD
Helpless Victims of Inhumanity

Mothers, babies and little children fleeing for their lives, clutching at a flimsy straw of hope, turning to the only possible haven of refuge—

And men, strong men—men who probably have toddling sons and daughters of their own at home—throw mercy and compassion to the four winds and make the sad occasion a thousand times sadder by PROFITEERING!

Shylock, Shakespeare's most despicable character, went to the supposed extreme of cruelty when he demanded a pound of flesh from the body of a grown man.

But, if the Stockholm information is true (and there is nothing as yet to indicate that it is not true), real, not imaginary men are capable of going further and sinking deeper into the mire of avarice by seizing upon a dire emergency as an excuse to extort money to the extent of THIRTY-EIGHT THOUSAND PER CENT from helpless mothers and their little ones.

More and more, as the conflict continues "over there," observers on this still peaceful side of the Atlantic will wonder with William Cardinal O'Connell and other Christian leaders whether the fundamental trouble with the world is not MORAL BANKRUPTCY, not only in high places but in some low places as well.

DOLEFUL NEWS, though hardly surprising news to property-owning Bostonians, comes from the Taxpayers' Alliance.

According to statistics obtained from the Real Estate Analysts of St. Louis, the family tax rate for Boston of $297.50 is far in excess of the rates in other major cities of the country. The second highest rate is $257.50, and this is in New York City.

The Alliance explains that the Mid-Western investigators based their survey on the tax rate per family, rather than on the per capita basis, because in "most cases the family is the tax-paying unit."

That of course is true, since children and other non-producers do not pay taxes individually.

But really to appreciate the back-crushing burden in Boston, one should examine the figures for the ten leading cities of the country and, among other thought-provoking things, note that the family tax load here is $153 higher than in Philadelphia; $144.50 higher than in Chicago, and $217.10 higher than in Oklahoma City.

CHELSEA'S EXPERIMENT will interest thousands throughout the State, particularly the thousands oppressed by the sky-rocketing cost of compulsory insurance.

In an attempt to expose fraudulent claims for injuries alleged to have been sustained in motor vehicle accidents, the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce plans to list in a future bulletin detailed information concerning who collected the money, who was the operator of the car and who enabled him to "prove" his case.

The light of publicity is powerful. It has defeated Presidents, dethroned kings, toppled mighty industrial barons from their thrones, even divided empires. CAN IT NOW PUT HONESTY INTO COMPULSORY INSURANCE?

Fishing Hole Thoughts

FISHING is such a restful sport; it takes you out of doors . . . and sunshine for the future years within your body stores . . . You may not even get a bite or catch a fish all day . . . But a fellow gets a chance to think and let his fancy stray . . . He thinks out all his problems, and they somehow seem to fade . . . while fishing with a bamboo rod beneath the willow's shade . . . He thinks about the things he'll do when he grows up to be . . . a man and has to shoulder great responsibility.

On the Side

"I JUST can't seem to make the grade with the boys I am interested in," writes a young lady of high school age. "Gosh, I wish I had a little more oomph!" . . . A man was telling me he had an orange colored canary he got from South America. I never owned a canary. What was the name of place Bugs Baer said was so tough the canaries sang bass. If you could get a canary that could sing bass, maybe you could match it with three other canaries and have a canary quartet. My ideas may not be good but they are unique.

MY FAVORITE radio comedy program, Ed Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, seems to be weakening and I feel pretty badly about it . . . I don't see all the films, but judging from what I have seen I think Betty Field, who was in "Seventeen," is the most brilliant of the younger actresses . . . The baseball season is about to begin. I played baseball, wrote baseball and was a rabid fan but I haven't seen a professional ball game in 10 years. Can't get interested in it any more. Players all seem individualists, team work is disregarded, arguments with umpires appear to be an act same as staged by wrestlers.

BILL (Bojangles) ROBINSON, the tap dancer, is the only man I know who eats a quart of ice cream for breakfast . . . It is said that Yolanda Casazza of Velez and Yolanda has 126 evening gowns. I like any kind of an evening gown on a woman as long as it is black . . . John Medbury said of a certain Hollywood star: "She is improving—she is marrying a better grade of man every year."

A JUDGE, suggesting leniency for a man accused of beating his wife, said: "A flippant, tantalizing female may drive a man to desperate limits" . . . "I just could have slapped her face," writes feminine client. "Whose face? Why that of the saleswoman who said when I didn't warm up to a hat she showed me: 'O, well if you want an old lady's hat this one will not suit you'" . . . When a reporter marries, the advance notices of his wedding are usually given special attention by his colleagues. A favorite conclusion to such notices is: "The marriage is to take place at 8:30 p. m. The condemned man ate a hearty breakfast."

SHY JACKIE COOPER WITH ROMANTIC BETTY FIELD
She's Most Brilliant of Younger Actresses, Says Durling

A NAME of a social group in Hungary is "The Budapest Divorcees' Club." It sounds as if it might be an interesting organization. Why not start a Divorcees' Club in your city with a view of attracting the attention of matrimonially inclined males. Your theme song could be "Just One More Chance." This reminds me I have to hand a communication from two divorcees who say: "We are starting on an auto tour of the country. We are definitely on a husband hunting trip."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

-1- -1- MY DAY

CARLIN, Nev., Aboard the Overland Limited, April 11—We had a most beautiful trip yesterday, stopping off for a few minutes to see some acquaintances in Sacramento, then proceeding on our way toward the mountains.

We stopped for lunch just before we reached Colfax, Calif., in a little wayside restaurant frequented by skiers all winter long, and there we had a most delicious meal of fried chicken, Montana ham, sweet potatoes and peas.

One cannot help admiring a woman like our hostess who with her husband is making a success of a small restaurant. She is no mere girl and the work is hard, but she and her husband are doing it with cheerfulness and zest in the adventure.

I HAVE BEEN over Donner Pass before, but to come over the top of the mountains and look down on the blue lake below is a lovely and stirring sight no matter how often you see it.

The memorial to the Donner party, many of whom perished in crossing this pass, is an interesting landmark, but Donner Lake is a memory to carry away and dwell upon.

We turned off the direct road to Reno to get a view of Lake Tahoe, for Miss Thompson and I had never seen it before. It was well worth the extra miles we travelled.

RENO'S COURTHOUSE
"Real Sorrows . . . Sham Ones"

In certain lights along the shore it is emerald green, merging into a deep purple and blue further out. Across from us, the snow covered mountains gleamed in the sun and the beauty of it was something to fortify the soul against the ugliness of much that is going on in the world today.

More small nations are being taken over by force. To be sure, the Berlin dispatches say Norway is being protected against the British. I wonder if history will not merely record what soldiers actually went into various countries, and pay little attention to the pronouncements given out by governments.

We reached Reno, Nevada, that curious city which is made up of people from all over the country of varying backgrounds, who come to live here for a short time, and of simple people who live their daily lives looking curiously at the visitors, but take no part in their somewhat feverish existence.

A place of real sorrow and of sham ones, and in its midst the University of Nevada, the one university in the state, where youth, we hope, lives and learns from both the joys and sorrows that go on around it.

BOTH the governor and the mayor greeted me at the lecture. I think the questions asked me were as interesting as any that have come to me in any previous lecture on this trip. Then I shook hands with various people for about half an hour and was happy to get a glimpse of a few old friends.

Miss Thompson and I returned to the hotel to pack and sleep for a very few hours and to rise again at 4:45 a. m. to take the 5:30 train! Now we are started on a long trip across the country.

ERIC VON STROHEIM was offered the role of Nazi Consul, in Clare Boothe's "Margin For Error." His salary was to be $2500 a week, but Von Stroheim wanted to read the script . . . He appeared at the producer's office next morning and said: "All right, I'll do it—but here are the revisions I've made." He didn't get the job, because he had eliminated all the flip answers given to the Nazi Consul by Patrolman Moe Finkelstein—the cop played by Sam Levene in the Broadway production.

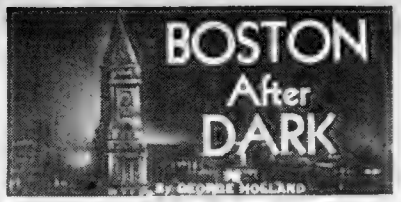
EDGAR LESLIE, songwriter, is one of the most pessimistic men on Broadway . . . For the past ten years he and his wife have been vacationing abroad. In Lindy's, Mrs. Leslie was urging her pessimistic husband to take a cruise on the Kungsholm . . . "It'll be lovely, going on that nice, comfortable boat," she stated . . . "I know only one thing. There are no mines on Broadway," the cautious Leslie told her. "At least I don't know of any."



EXCLUSIVE: That Lochinvar from the East (Side), Georgie Jessel, can win himself the price of a marvellous honeymoon if he will back up his statements that he and young Lois Andrews will be married Sunday—with a little coin of the realm . . . In the course of a Boston visit which saw him ringsiding at the Mayfair, one George Trommer, a townsman of Jessel's, passed the short and ugly word to Romeo Georgie.

"I AM READY TO WAGER fifty dollars against five," said Mr. Trommer, "or a larger sum or sums in the same generous ratio of ten to one, that Lois will not become the bride of Jessel this Sunday or any other Sunday . . ." "Or" (said Mr. Trommer after a pause) "in Detroit or any other city" . . . What gives the Trommer statement a ring of authority is the widely-known fact that he (Mr. Trommer) and the childlike Lois—who has just turned sixteen—were very dear friends before Jazz-Singer Georgie began getting his name in the papers as the October end of an October-April romance between him and the hard-punching Miss Andrews.

WE SHALL NOT HAVE to wait too long for the denouement . . . Mr. Trommer confided to friends that come Sunday, the date of the alleged wedding-to-be of Miss Andrews and Mr. Jessel, the "bride-to-be" will be actually, in California . . . Mr. Jessel, on the other hand, has confided to such friends of the press as would listen that Sunday will see him slipping a wedding ring (and not a teething ring as the version of the Broadway slickers has it) on the slender finger of his adolescent "sweetheart."

IF MR. TROMMER IS CORRECT in his prediction, it is easy to imagine that Mr. Jessel is in somewhat of a "spot" at this very moment . . . Widest publicity has been given Mr. Jessel's avowals that Miss Andrews would become the successor of Florence Courtney and Norma Talmadge (as Mrs. Jessel No. 3) . . . Many of the journalists who have "fallen" for the Jessel prophecies are friends of long-standing.

IF MR. TROMMER, A VERY WEALTHY scion of a New York family of brewers, is not talking through his Spring fedora—the prospect is that more than one estrangement is imminent between Actor Jessel and certain gentlemen of the press . . . (Who do not enjoy being made to resemble goofs or mooches) . . . Personally, we are stringing along with Mr. Trommer . . . And furthermore, whether Sunday proves us apparently wrong or right, we believe that Mr. Jessel is playing Pagliacci while blithely passing around his heart . . . Mr. Jessel, really, is only kidding, however questionable we might regard his method of having fun . . . His heart belongs still to Norma Talmadge . . . Or does anybody care?

WARNERS WILL FILM WOOLLCOTT PLAY

By Louella O. Parsons

Moss Hart

HOLLYWOOD, April 11—Well, honors go to Jack Warner for having nabbed the most sought-after play of the year—"The Man Who Came to Dinner." The deal is all set and will be signed, sealed and delivered within a few days. Instead of the $300,000 which George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart asked for their play they will accept a percentage deal and a guarantee which will probably net them much more than $300,000 for there's never been a play more widely publicized than this amusing satire on Alexander Woollcott

LEILA ERNST

In the contracts which Jack Warner and Hal Wallis have drawn up Kaufman and Hart will write the adaptation of their play which seems a wise provision for the authors know the man in the wheel chair better than anyone else. The stage play is going full blast in New York with Monty Woolly and in Chicago with Clifton Webb, so that it will probably be at least a year before Warners can bring it to the screen. And oh, by the way, I wonder if they'll leave the line about me in the picture?

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD. The Johnny Weissmullers heatedly deny domestic difficulties; Eddie Hillman's latest heart throb is Maxine Baldwin, a Universal starlet. So it looks as if that reconciliation with the former Mrs. H. is definitely off; Jackie Cooper's mother is so seriously ill in Palm Springs he was unable to see his best girl, Leila Ernst, off when she went East. He sent her a big lunch of red roses and made a date to see her in Ogunquit, Maine, where they will both play summer stock.

BING CROSBY'S kids had a special showing of "The Biscuit Eater" and did they love it! Arleen Whelan flies East for the opening of Alex D'Arcy's show, "Keep Off the Grass." Saw Alex in New York and he had just talked with Arleen. He and Simone Simon were in the same party at the Stork Club; Margaret Lindsay and Bill Lundigan taking up where they left off before she went East.

RUDY VALLEE with Ann Miller and Pat Dane at the party Slapsie Maxie gave in his honor—and Maxie was really in great form; the Phil Bergs and the Buster Colliers having the best time at the Florentine Gardens. So were the two George White's Scandals cuties who came to see N. T. G.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

MARY JUMPED out of bed and opened the window. A robin was singing outside. "O Jack!" she cried, "get up! It's Spring!"

Jack stretched and yawned. "Yep, I know it; and I'm going fishing."

"Well," said Mary, "why not? It's a swell day. And I'll go to the movies. But do be careful not to catch cold."

"Don't worry," said Jack. "I'll take some whiskey along in case I get a chill—"

JACK had been fishing for an hour, and no luck. "What the heck!" he exclaimed. "This fishing stuff is all bunk. Big catches look all right in the sporting advertisements. But who ever saw a real one?"

Then along came a boy with a basket full of fish. He noted Jack's plight. "Whatcher usin' for bait?" he asked.

"Worms," said Jack.

"No good," said the boy. "Orter use frogs."

"Frogs?" querried Jack. "Where can I find them?"

The boy pointed. "Over there in the swamp. But yer got ter step lively; fer can they jump—and how!"

Jack had been poking round the swamp for 20 minutes. Frogs everywhere, but he couldn't catch them. He was getting tired. "If I'd only thought," he said to himself. "I'd bought some frogs of the boy—too late now." Then he stumbled over something soft and squirmy. "Ugh!" he said, "what's that?" He looked behind him. It was a big black snake. "Holy mackerel!!!" Jack started to run. But something caught his attention. The snake had something in its mouth. It was a big frog.

"Now or never," Jack said, and he grabbed the frog's legs and pulled. But the snake wouldn't let go. Then Jack fished out his flask, unscrewed the stopper, and poured some whiskey in the snake's mouth. The snake gulped, let go of the frog and wiggled away."

JACK WALKED a little way down the shore of the pond.

He pulled the frog out of his pocket and had just succeeded in impaling the slippery creature on his hook when he felt a sharp tug at his trouser leg. He jumped four feet in the air and looked around—

There was old Mr. Snake with two frogs in his mouth.

Jack drank the rest of the whiskey.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

A CRITIC says: "I can see no reason why Americans of this time should ask God to bless America, unless a portrayal of the stupidity of a man or a nation is what God desires to see . . . Simply to claim that 'America is the wealthiest country in the world and has the highest standard of living' does not establish assurance that the American people are worthy of God's blessing for America.

"Do you realize that the entire population is 'up in the air' wondering what next must be done?

"Do you realize that the 'God Bless America' of Kate Smith can be likened to the boy whistling as he passes by a cemetery on a dark night?"

AS AN INDIVIDUAL yelp, this query might not matter greatly either to Uncle Sam or God. But we have fallen into the quaint habit of not only retaining but encouraging persons with these views. So it may be well for once to answer them en masse.

So you wonder why God should bless America? Well, stranger, I'm not much of an authority on the Creator but I've gathered a few tips that seem to have held up with fair consistency during several million years.

You seem to insinuate primarily that our national boundaries and state laws are no special treat to the Almighty. That well may be so. It also may be true that a Yankee looks no better to his Father than a Briton or a Pole, a German or a Greek, a Zulu or a Russian. Granted again.

But I'll tell you something that does look better . . . something that IS of importance to God Almighty . . . and that is the flash of His own eternal vision against the blackness of the jungle night.

WHY SHOULD God bless America? That is why—because in the long struggle against the powers of darkness that vision has never flashed purer or cleaner than it has in these United States.

And you could have picked no bonnier proof of it than great-hearted Kate Smith who, by the breaks that America above all nations gives to courageous, ambitious youth, rose above obscurity and need to be beloved by every man, woman and child in the land.

There have been others. One, a homely, unlettered, penniless boy whose soul grew painful wings while his calloused hands split rails. Where in all the world of nations could those wings have found room to spread save in the height and breadth of America's design for freedom and fair play?

Betty Field to Co-Star With Fredric March in 'Victory'

Greta, Sonja Losers in War

HOLLYWOOD, April 11—Of all the young actresses who have come up in the last year there is none more promising than Betty Field. Not only is she a picture — and cute, but she can act.

Sonja Henie

She does a magnificent job in "Two On An Island" on the New York stage and you cannot deny she has been tops in all the movies she has made—"Seventeen," "What a Life" and "Of Mice and Men."

You feel she is so young, so naive in appearance and so pretty that she belongs in the gay, light class, but she's just as good in dramatic roles. That's why Paramount is putting her in "Victory," Joseph Conrad's novel, as Fredric March's co-star. She checks out of "Two On An Island" and arrives in Hollywood May 1.

• • •

Hollywood's two Scandinavian actresses, Greta Garbo and Sonja Henie, will be harder hit financially speaking than any other two movie actresses.

Garbo has always sent the bulk of her money to Sweden and she has extensive investments in apartment houses and Swedish bonds which have dropped 40 per cent within the last few days.

If Sweden gets into the war, Greta's holdings will be practically worthless.

Sonja won't be as hard hit since she has invested most of her money in America but she still has goodly amount in Oslo which may be lost now.

Sonja told me she had sold her home there—but she is thrifty and during her career has made a few important investments in her own country.

Robinson Film Hit for Olympia

"Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," starring Edward G. Robinson and "Little Old New York," will occupy Washington St. Olympia's screen, starting Saturday.

CROSBY-HOPE HIT FOR SCOLLAY, MODERN

"The Road to Singapore," which represents the most inspired comedy teaming of the year, brings Bob Hope and Bing Crosby to the Scollay and Modern screens tomorrow.

Dorothy Lamour is also starred and sarong-ed but it is the boys who contribute the fun and most of the entertainment to this really choice comedy. Radio's mustachioed Jerry Colonna is a featured member of the cast.

The second feature, "Women Without Names," with Ellen Drew, Robert Paige and Judith Barrett, provides a keyhole view of life behind the tall, grey walls of a women's penitentiary

Boris Karloff, expert at depicting such grotesque characters, plays this strange role.

Elsa Lanchester, noted English actress and wife of Charles Laughton, enacts this weird creature's mate. She has been similarly "assembled" and brought to life in a crackling electrical laboratory.

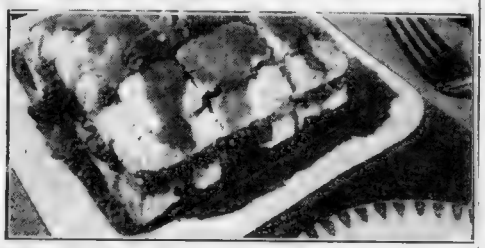
Let's Have Meat Shortcake!

By MARTHA LEE

A little imagination will turn ordinary foods into triumphs of flavor and goodness. Take a meat shortcake, for instance — here's a dish that men in particular enjoy just as much as they do anything in the pie or cake line.



BEEF SHORTCAKE with mock turtle sauce for dinner.

And shortcakes offer an excellent way of using the less expensive cuts of meat, and using leftovers, too.

BEEF SHORTCAKE WITH MOCK TURTLE SAUCE

FILLING FOR SHORTCAKE

2 tbsp shortening or butter
¼ cup onions, chopped
1 lb. beef, ground
½ tsp. salt
Pinch of pepper
½ can condensed tomato soup

Cook the chopped onions in the melted fat until soft. Then add the ground beef and cook until brown. Mix with the tomato soup and seasonings and heat well.

BAKED SHORTCAKE

2 cups flour
½ tsp. salt
3 tsp. baking powder
4 tbsp. butter
2–3 cup (approximately) milk

Sift the flour, measure, add salt and baking powder and sift again. Cut in shortening, then add the milk by adding a small amount at a time until a stiff dough is formed. Roll out the dough in a piece about 9x9 inches square. Put into a buttered baking pan and bake in a hot (450 deg. F.) oven for 15 to 20 minutes.

Split the baked shortcake, butter while hot and spread the meat filling between the layers. Replace the top half of the shortcake. Cut into slices about three inches square and serve a hot sauce over the top.

MOCK TURTLE SAUCE

1 can condensed mock turtle soup
6 tbsp. water

Add the water to the mock turtle soup and stir well. Heat and serve the sauce over the pieces of beef shortcake.

Smart Set Functions

WITH THE EYES of the world riveted on Scandinavia there is more interest than ever in the Finnish Relief fund which has been carrying on a series of charity affairs in Boston . . .

Latest benefit on the list is the world premiere of George M. Cohan's new play at the Colonial Theater next Monday evening . . . Hundreds of socially prominent men and women will be on hand, not only to greet the veteran actor and enjoy his show, but also to help swell the coffers on the relief fund . . .

Editorial observers might derive something of political import from the titles of Mr. Cohan's plays . . . He last appeared here in "I'd Rather Be Right" (than President) and he comes back to Boston in "The Return of the Vagabond"! . . .

Mrs. William Brace Pratt of Milton, chairman of metropolitan activities for the relief organization, is also chairman of the theater committee . . . Mrs. William P. Homans of Ponkapoag, who has a hand in many worthy charitable activities in Boston, is serving as ticket chairman . . .

Prominent theater lovers planning to attend this brilliant opening include Mrs. Arthur W. Bell, Mrs. Edward L. Bigelow, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Francis W. Bird of East Walpole, Mrs. Herbert Bowden, Mrs. Otto Bradley, Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, Mrs. Henry Cannon Clark of Prides Crossing, Mrs. Paul G. Courtenay and Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby . . .

PUTTING the finishing touches on her costume, blonde Mrs. Basil Gavin of Millis, prepares to attend a committee meeting of the society group planning the Burroughs Newsboys' Foundation benefit performance of the Ballet Russe next Tuesday, April 16.

Junior Leaguers Hear Ballet Lecture

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE BALLROOM resembled a college classroom yesterday as girls sat with pencils and notebooks scribbling notes on a lecture about history and interpretation of the ballet . . .

The lecture was planned by Mrs. Francis Minot to give league members a better understanding of the subject so they can more thoroughly enjoy the performances of the Ballet Russe at the Opera House next week . . . and judging from the number who took notes the girls are taking their ballet very seriously . . .

John Profit, who has studied and taught dancing and taken a prominent part in Harvard Dramatic Club activities for the past few years, was the speaker . . .

Present were Mrs. J. Burke Wilkinson, wearing a becoming gold wool jacket and black pleated skirt. Sarah Bradlee who has coached many Junior League theatricals, Mrs. Robert Miller, who was ticket chairman for the occasion, Patricia Withington, Mrs. Edward J. L. Ropes, Nancy Tucker and Mrs. Edward L. Bond . . .

Girls Aiding Harvard Play

Once again Harvard Dramatic Club members have called on some of their girl friends to lend a bit of feminine glamour to the cast of their spring production. The play, "The Ascent of F6," will be presented at Sanders Theater, May 2, 3 and 4, and leading ladies will include Priscilla Freeman, a Brookline post deb who has become a prominent figure in amateur theatricals.

Other feminine parts will be played by Jean Bond and Claire Rabinowitz, while a girls' chorus will include Claire Mathey, Nancy Wyeth, Barbara Taylor, Alberta Taylor, Betty Bell, Helen Sarson and Sue Smith, all undergraduates at Lasell or Radcliffe.

Leonard Kent will be leading man and his supporting cast includes George Clay, Gerald Deakin, Jervis McMechan, Clarence Burley, Henry Munroe, William Hughes, Earl Montgomery, Mike MacLeod and William Robinson.

TEA TO HONOR FAY SCHOOL FOUNDERS

Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Mrs. George Winslow Perkins and Miss Edith W. Fisher will serve as pourers at the Founders' Day tea of the Fay School, to be held at the Hotel Somerset tomorrow.

During the afternoon the dramatic club of the school will present a one-act play, the cast of which will include Marjorie Ochs of Arlington, Mary Hayes of Waltham, Joan Rassmuesen of Wakefield, Helen Birmingham of Woburn, Lois Barwood of Stoneham and Jane Hitchings of Lynnfield Center.

You Can Be Beautiful

For Enigmatic, Dramatic You

By ARLINE GOULD

DRAMATIC people recognize drama in a new cosmetic the instante they see it . . . and if you're one for getting every bit of effect, and getting it first, out of anything new, listen to this true tale . . .

There has been available for but a short time a brand new, deep "black" red . . . like black cherries, or antique velvet, or precious aged wine . . . to be had in a lipstick and nail polish. New York debutantes snatched it up instantaneously.

And now for that extra drama that seems to go hand in hand with it . . . we were around to witness a spectacular elopement not long ago and the gal in the case was a devotee of this striking cosmetic pair . . . and no sooner did we get over the breathlessness of it all, than we saw a famous North Shore socialite who is carving out a career in New York . . . and what do you suppose was the most attention-getting accent that highlighted her already dramatic self? It was this brooding, deep, amazing new color for lips and fingertips!

The long arm of coincidence, you say? Yes. But more than that. It's like lightning and the top of the Empire State building . . . they get together dramatically, the right gals and the right cosmetic agent.

Remember, this is not for everybody . . . and for full impact it means that both lipstick and nail polish should be used together . . . but if it's for you . . . step up into the list of gals who might be immortals if they choose to be, and fade sees it that way . . .

If you'd like to learn about this new color, the "blackest red" that cosmetics have ever dared to employ . . . wonderful with winter galop, and later on, surprising with tan . . . phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4100, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

UNEXPECTED, unprecedented among this season's neutral, misty accent tones for lips and fingertips . . . the new dark, dark red . . . a vastly exciting touch for those high style colors coming in on the fashion scene, beige and grey. Sheer distinction with other spring colors . . . and strangely enough, it whitens pale hands, but emphasizes tan . . . which is as enigmatic a phase as the color itself. Available in nail polish and lipstick, with a grand silk drawstring kit included without charge when you buy both. The kit, by the way, has compartments so you can load keys and other things in it, too. See Arline Gould's column for further description.

Smart Set Fashions

Longer Jackets in Tweeds

By ANNICE BRINK

IT'S REALLY spring when you get an unbearable longing to get out where the ground is dampish and you're apt to find wild geraniums . . . when you feel you must see the close-to-the-ground chartreuse carpeting of wild valley lilies . . . and you want, more than anything, a smart new tweed suit!

Perhaps this year you're thinking of one that is as good for trips to the country as it is for bus rides or shopping wear . . . and that is something easy to find.

There are nice gray and blue tones, subdued, in houndstooth checks. There is a red, blues, and white small plaid, so well blended that it's neutral enough but marvelous on which to base a smart color scheme. And loads of others.

These new tweed suits are all longer-jacketed if it's the mood you seek. But extremely flattering. The hip-line is trim and fitted, and most often is accented by big patch pockets . . . a military idea from war-work uniforms that look so well when adapted for our peaceful ways.

Most skirts in this type of suit have very good looking fullness, placed at even intervals all around. I liked best the trouser crease gores, fairly narrow; with six or so all around they yield grand fullness. One unusual skirt had a group of box pleats in the front and in the back.

If you're not in the market for a tweed suit, but would like some extra tweed skirts in the new colors and matching sweaters, you can find these new cuts too, they are quite inexpensive.

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By CHARLES McGUIRK

THAT Murder Ring was a lulu, anybody will tell you. It had been working for 20 years and it had served all the rackets from the garment trades to the chicken pullers. It had also served many private individuals who were smart enough to know about it or who knew the boys who could send you a workman to rub out an enemy you thought had lived too long.

How many had been killed by its killers? Well, how many flakes are in a snow storm or how many blossoms in an apple tree in bloom? Those things one cannot count. A thousand, may be. Two thousand. What makes it?

The way it worked was very simple, after all, like all great things of genius. Two men were the bosses. You were a racketeer, say, and you were having business troubles for which one man or two or three were responsible. So you went to these two men and you told them your troubles. You said, "This fellow X is responsible. He knows too much or he is double-crossing me or he is too powerful or I do not like his looks. I would be happier if he was not. How much do you think it would cost me to have him that way?"

So these two men would put their heads together and they would say, "Mike, how much do you think this sucker can stand? Can he stand for a 10-grand shake? Or five? Or one? Or five C's?" And they would decide the price and then they would tell you the price and you would say, "O. K. Here is the dough on the line." And then you would go away and wait and one fine morning, you would wake up and read in your morning paper that the man who was bringing trouble to you had been found dead in an alley or he had been hit by a truck or he had been gunned as he sat at dinner with his wife and kids. However, he died, he certainly was not any more. So you had gotten the worth of your money and you were happy, if you were that kind of a rat. See?

But that wasn't why the Murder Ring was a thing of genius. It was so because Mike and Ike, its headmen, were smart. Remember, you gave them anywhere from five hundred to ten thousand dollars to rub out a guy. All right. When they were handing out the job, they would call on one of their torpedoes and they would say, "Blitz, we got a job for you. This monkey is a tough guy. He is putting the pressure on a friend. Rub him out. It's a pretty delicate job and nobody could do it but you. So we're paying you extra for it. Here's a fin. When the job is done, we'll give you another saw-buck. Now scram." Fifteen dollars for a first-class murder! Can you beat it? Can you even tie it? Subtract $15 from $500 or $10,000 and you had the take of Mike and Ike. And this had been going on for 20 years!

The Cast of Characters in "Singing Lesson"

MIKE and IKE, heads of racketeers and a crime ring.
MIKE BELLOTTI, a detective.
PAT SHANE, a prosecuting attorney.
BENNY, a hired killer who also can sing.

WEALTHY GENTLEMEN

Naturally, Mike and Ike did all right for themselves. They had their twenty-grand limousines and their diamonds and their racing stables and their blondes. They had their menials in the City Hall and their killers were as numerous as drinks in a busy bar on a Saturday night. They were Big Shots and nobody could get to them. They chiselled in on a couple of rackets of their own. Good ones like the bondsman and the loan shark. Why, there was no limit to where they could go! Why, in a couple of years they would have been pushing the Vanderbilts and the Astors around! Only for Pat Shane. Oh, yes, and Mike Bellotti.

And who were they? Why, they were nobodies. They were nothing but a couple of coppers. Well, they weren't exactly coppers when they began to stir things up. They weren't harness bulls. They weren't pounding the pavements. But they were coppers. Pat pounded the pavements with Mike Bellotti, a first generation American. Just a couple of pals. But they both were ambitious. And—don't laugh—they were shocked at the way things were worked, at the fix that could always be put in by criminals. It made Pat so sore that he studied law. He swore he was going to do something about it. Mike had more sense. He just went on being a cop, but a good one. He uncovered so many crimes and criminals as a harness bull that he was made a detective and went on up from there to a captaincy.

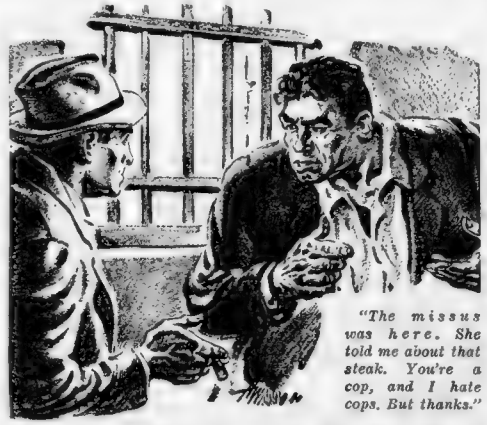
THE TIDE TURNS

Pat passed his bar exams and went into practice and politics. Politics landed him in the Prosecuting Attorney's office. The day he was elected, he said to Mike: "Well, here we are. Now, we will go and get Mike and Ike. You and I will sit them and about twenty of their stooges in the hot seat and the State will turn on the juice. It's your play, Mike. Bring them in. I'll take them from there and send them to the Big House.

Mike didn't waste any time. In a week he had Mike and Ike behind bars and charged with three murders, with 20 others on the waiting list. He had so much circumstantial evidence that they had to wheel it into Pat's office in a wheelbarrow. He had so many of Mike and Ike's torpedoes that the jail was full to bursting.

When the story broke first, the newspapers went wild. They spread it all over their front pages. They had Pat and Mike reading like Lindbergh when he flew the Atlantic. They were angels and heroes. But as time went on and the date of the trial drew nearer and nearer, the newspapers got out their hammers and started gently to beat Pat and Mike over the head. For with all their circumstantial evidence and even the real goods on three of the actual killers, they did not have one iota of legal proof against Mike and Ike. Those boys had been busy. Their stooges were working among potential witnesses with dough and threats. "Here's five C." Shut up. If you don't, we'll cook you." The witnesses believed them. Nobody would talk. Nobody

Pat and Mike sat in Pat's office and Pat was very sad. "I think," he said, "we're beaten. I think we turned out to be suckers. I think this washes me up as Prosecutor and gets you thrown off the police force, Mike, and I'm sorry I ever got you into it."



"The missus was here. She told me about that steak. You're a cop, and I hate cops. But thanks."

"Well, you didn't pull me in by the seat of the pants," Mike told him. "I knew what I was doing. And quit crying. Pat, you were a cop once, what did you ever learn about toughies? When you were working a case that wouldn't break, who did you put the pressure on, the toughies or the weak sisters?"

"The weak sisters," Pat said. "They figured to break easiest."

MIKE GOES VISITING

"And that's why you never got to be a detective," Mike told him. "The one to work on is the toughest guy in the mob. The reason he's tough is because he's naturally gentle. Sometimes when he's real tough, he's yellow. It's what those psychological birds call an escape. Now the toughest killer we got on ice is Benny Blitz. We know he's killed at least eight men. We got the goods on him. He's my meat. Give me an order and I'm going to live with him till he breaks down and sings."

"How will you do it?" Pat asked.

"Well," Mike explained, "he's a family man, ain't he? He has a wife and two kids. And he's broke and they're not eating good. Give me that order."

But when Mike got the order, he didn't go near Benny for a couple of days. Instead, he went to see Mrs. Blitz and her two children, Benny, Jr., 5, and Mariam, 3. Naturally, Mrs. Blitz was suspicious. She told him right off the bat she wouldn't have anything to do with coppers. Mike said he didn't want anything from her. He just wanted to see how they were doing and he saw they weren't doing so well. He brought a steak and fixings and walked out of the place. Then he went to see Benny.

Benny was tough. He looked like a gorilla before the gorilla had his morning shave. When he spit, he dented the pavement. He weighed nearly 200 and not much of it was fat. He began cursing cops as soon as he walked into the barred room where Mike was waiting for him. He told Mike that he was wasting his time. He wasn't doing any talking. Mike and Ike were good guys. He'd worked for them and they had been O. K. with him. You had to take guys like you find them.

"O. K." Mike agreed, "Mike and Ike are good guys. They're rich, too. They got everything. They're living on filet mignon and good liquor. They have nice blondes for their amusement. They have ten-grand cars. They got the best mouthpiece in New York. They're living like kings right in this jail. But how are they treating you, Benny? And how is the missus? Yeh, how is the missus and the kids? Are they eating good? You're going to burn, you know, Benny. We got four murders on you. All the evidence in. And what's to become of the missus and the kids? I just thought I'd ask you. Now, if you talked——"

He got up then and went away and he didn't come back for five days. When he did, Benny was just as tough as ever, but there was some difference. Mike didn't even mention the case. He talked about this and that. When he was going, Benny said: "The missus was here. She told me about that steak. You're a cop, and I hate cops. But thanks."

BENNY TALKS

The next day Mike took Benny's missus and the two kids to a store and bought the kids some clothes. He also paid their landlord for a month's rent. A week after that he went to see Benny again. He said "Hello, Benny."

"Listen, copper," Benny blurted. "I got something on my mind and I'm getting it off and maybe you better call in a stenographer. I'd like to make a deal. I'd like to get life instead of the hot seat, but that's up to you. What I want is that the missus and the kids get a little break. Maybe you can see that they're taken care of for a little while. But even if they ain't, I'm through being a sucker. Why should Mike and Ike get away with as many murders as they have? Why, they're cheap rats. They took me for a punk and they give me nothing for rubbing out a lot of guys. So, Mike, if you can, see that the family gets taken care of, will you?"

"I'll do my best," Mike promised him. "Here's the stenographer now. Remember, anything you say may be used against you."

"To hell with that," Benny said. "Ready, punk! Here goes!"

When Benny got through, the stenographer's right hand was paralyzed but Mike and Ike were all wrapped up and headed for the Little Green House at the end of the Last Mile. They burned with seven others at the biggest mass execution in the state's history. And when it was over, Pat Shane said to Mike Bellotti, "Mike, that was a nice job you did, getting that confession out of Benny Blitz. I never thought he'd sing."

"Anybody'll sing if you go after him right," Mike told him, "and a tough guy ain't so tough when you get under his hide. But Pat, I think you should kick in a couple hundred bucks for Benny's kids. He's doing life and he ain't much of a help."

"Three hundred's what I can let you have now, Mike," Pat said, "and I wish it was six."

"That'll do for a starter," Mike said, "I'm putting some money in myself. That younger Benny Blintz is a darn smart kid and I'm a bachelor. I guess I'll try being his old man."

ARTIST'S SKETCH OF SAN FRANCISCO CALL-BULLETIN'S NEW HOME

Building, Completely Modern, Will Be Erected on Two-Acre Plot of Land

2-Acre Plant for Hearst Coast Paper

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11—Purchase of a two-acre site for the streamlined, super-efficient new building to house the historic San Francisco Call-Bulletin, the city's oldest newspaper and the largest evening paper in northern California, was announced today.

The Bulletin, founded in 1855, was acquired by William Randolph Hearst in 1929 and merged with the Call and Post into the present Call-Bulletin.

The new Call-Bulletin plant will have 77,000 feet of floor space and will be a structure of modern, functional beauty, with sweeping horizontal lines.

It will afford every mechanical and time-saving facility for continuation of the Call-Bulletin's long-established leadership, won through the years—leadership in circulation in the afternoon field, in display advertising in the entire daily field, including department store, retail, automotive and national advertising.

IN HEART OF CITY

The location and design of the new building will pemit a new high of manufacturing efficiency to be introduced, with last-minute news and pictures compiled in record time for each successive edition and made available to the public more smoothly and quickly than ever before.

The land acquired for the Call-Bulletin's new home is 90,250 square feet in the heart of the city at Howard st. and Holland ct., between Fourth and Fifth sts.

The purchase was the largest single real estate deal in downtown San Francisco in almost 15 years.

It is expected that ground will be broken for the new building some time in May.

MANY FAMOUS NAMES

In their long years of existence in a city fondly known as "the newspapermen's newspaper town," the Call and Bulletin have achieved enviable records of public service and produced world-famous writers, editors and artists.

The "Alumni" roster of the two papers include such distinguished names as those of Mark Twain, Fremont Older, Maxwell Anderson, Sinclair Lewis, Kathleen Norris, Bob Ripley, TAD, Rube Goldberg, Maynard Dixon, Homer Davenport, Russ Westover, J. P. Medbury and—more lately—Jimmy Hatlo, Eleanore Meherin and Evelyn Wells.

AUSTEN LAKE

What a Pro Football Team Faces in Boston

IT IS PRETTY GAME OF MR. JOE CONWAY and his syndicate of Boston businessmen to risk another bundle of fresh funds on a pro football team, considering the two conspicuous flops that have occurred since Mr. George Marshall and Mr. Bill Scully paid the price of failure from their own living, bleeding flesh. The race in that industrial sport is between cash and courage.

AUSTEN LAKE

Still the missionary work is done and Boston, whom Mr. Marshall once brand id as a hick-town, swayed by a lot of irresponsible journalists and spiritually unfit for a fine civic enterprise like a pro football team, has developing customer appeal. Mr. Marshall said that Boston is obsessed by the horse and dog gambling element which has gradually diverted its liquid wealth into a voracious maw until it threatens to soak up every citizen with every spare dollar. Boston, said Mr. Marshall, has lost its sporting soul.

The trouble with the Redskins and the Shamrocks was that they were promoted by aliens to New England, who regarded this region as peopled by yokels with hay in their ears who yearned for more daffy ways to spend their coin. Pro football might have succeeded if Marshall hadn't treated Boston as a kind of private game preserve where he was licensed to bag every buck in sight.

Maybe you recall how he hoisted the fares to one of his games when he saw an unexpected horde of patrons storming the turnstiles, and how the folk who had come with bankrolls amounting to 75 cents inclusive of carfare going and coming, found the fee hoiked from 55c to $1.10. And maybe you recall how he punished the Boston people at the moment he won his divisional championship and kidnaped his team to Washington.

▼ ▼ ▼

MR. MARSHALL WAS AN AUTOCRATIC MAN who wouldn't concede that a professional team belonged to the people. The team, he said, was his team to do with as he pleased, and it pleased him to thwart and exasperate his clients by a lot of Jekyll and Hyde antics.

Well then, the next year Mr. Scully, a New York advertising magnate with some fun-money to spend, archangeled a lot of left-over college athletes. You remember that he tried to hire Larry Kelly, the ex-Yale pass catcher and most boomed hero since Red Grange, even mailing Kelly a cashier's check for $300 and a lawyer's option on his services. But Larry squirmed away at the last moment and there was Scully with his pathetic aggregation of nondescripts and a great aching vacuity in his stands. So after a little while Bill blew the show and let his kids drift West on a barnstorming tour, from which they never reappeared.

The Boston syndicate, which contains such native names as Dan Lyne, the lawyer; Francis Ouimet, the golfing broker; Judge John Burns, the former New Deal brain truster; Joe Conway, the sporting goods tycoon, is aware of Boston foibles, crowd habits and high pressure oddities. They say they have $100,000, which is important money. They say they'll "lay it on the line" for a coach like Clipper Smith of Villanova or Skip Madigan of St. Mary's or Red Grange of the Chicago Bears—maybe $10,000, maybe more, or just maybe!

UP TO LATE YEARS THE TROUBLE WITH the professional football game has been that the leagues have changed size, shape and membership too rapidly for customer interest to jell. Teams entered the leagues and dropped out casually, and very often the customer was puzzled to learn that some games didn't count in the standing, but were only experimental contests at the regular rates. And, of course, the personnel changes constantly too, and even the most enthusiatic patrons are put to some strain to keep up with the names of all the athletes on his favorite team.

That is an inherent condition of pro-football which the game, if it is to succeed here will have to succeed in spite of. So many stars are graduated each year and fame is so fleeting that unless a man is a Red Grange, a Sammy Baugh or a Whizzer White, he is not likely to be missed by the public if his employer drops him in favor of a new graduate whose reputation is fresher.

▼ ▼ ▼

THE ABSENCE OF THE COLLEGE BIG GAME atmosphere is another drawback here, where football goers have been educated to hordes of pretty girl guests, the doggerel cheers of the undergraduates, student bands thumping and tooling and the great hysterical moment when the rival squads come tumbling out of opposite tunnels.

For the organized college cheer has a much different sound than the go-as-you-please "Attaboy" form of tribute from the football crowd—as George Marshall discovered in the course of his Boston experiment. Mr. Marshall wished to stimulate college conditions at his games and engaged several female cheer leaders who had some co-educational background.

He also employed a small cheering section composed of veteran vegetable peddlers and newsboys, selecting them for their vocal power alone and scattering them among the customers.

But though the lady cheer leaders leaped and turned handsprings and the hucksters and peddlers screamed the linings off their larynxes, Mr. Marshall admitted that it was just noisy-noise and abandoned the notion of developing varsity spirit at his games. Still, to the very last he clung to his band of horn blurters—grizzled musicians in colored cutie caps and campus blazers who looked as though they had prepped at Ossining.

Maybe Mr. Joe Conway, Mr. Dan Lyne, Judge Burns, and Francis Ouimet will be able to do what Mr. Marshall and Mr. Scully failed to do for themselves. I, for one, wish them well! It is time somebody did something for gents so long on courage and so lavish in civic fashion. Besides it may work! Nine rahs and a Tiger for the intrepid band!

DIZZY DEFIES GABBY ON ORDER TO GO HOME

KANSAS CITY, April 11 (AP)—Dizzy Dean, who changes his mind faster than he ever changed his pitching pace, cancelled a midnight train reservation and guessed he'd stay over today to watch his Chicago Cubs play an exhibition game against Pittsburgh's Pirates.

"I'm going to sit in the stands, eat peanuts and enjoy myself just like any other fan."

Ol' Diz beamed. He was feeling good after a chicken dinner, topped off by a beer or two. He apparently forgot that he was fined $100 and ordered by Manager Charles Hartnett to go on to Chicago.

HARTNETT GRUMPY

Hartnett, apparently irked more by the telephone calls Dean's latest screwball antics caused him than by the pitcher's actual offence, suddenly was neither jovial nor g :bby.

The trouble all started in Wichita. No one knows when it will end, or how.

"Who cares" snapped Hartnett.

Dizzy told interviewers at Topeka he spent Tuesday night visiting an uncle, the Rev. Bland Dean, who lives 14 miles from Wichita.

"I knew I was going to be a little late (to catch the Cubs' special) so I tried to telephone Hartnett. I couldn't get him."

UNCLE DIDN'T SEE DIZ

He caught a later train and arrived 30 minutes behind the Cubs.

His uncle said "I didn't see Dizzy. He didn't show up."

Dean slipped in his fast one:

"Aw I didn't say my uncle. I said my nephew. Any of the boys'll tell you I was withh im."

Said Hartnett: $100 fine and home to Chicago."

Dean made a train reservation for St. Louis to see his wife—his moral and spiritual adviser in times of stress.

Then Dean and most of the Cubs went out to see Joe Gleason's Golden Arrow Tavern. Gleason, in his second year with the Cubs, was host at a chicken dinner. Manager Hartnett was conspicuous by his absence.

DIZ WAVERS

There Ol' Diz wavered between submission to Hartnett's orders and rebellion.

"I'm going to do anything Gabby wants me to . . ."

A few bites later:

"If they make that phone fine stick I'm going on an exhibition tour. I can make more than the $10,000 they're paying me in three weeks' barnstorming. That's the trouble with ball clubs and managers—they won't pay you anything.

"Do you think the fans come out to see Gabby stand in the coaches' box and wvae his arms? No, they come to see me pitch.

"We've got the best club I've ever worked with. I can win 20 games with these boys.

CANCELS RESERVATION

"Why, we oughta win the pennant. But we can't with Hartnett as manager. Say, I'll tell you right now—he won't last out the season as manager. He don't know how to run a club. . . ."

Dizzy glanced at a clock, saw it was nearly train time, rushed to a phone and cancelled his reservation.

Hartnett, informed Dean still was heresbouts, said he planned no further action against the pitcher.

Ducks Bobby Jones' Home Town

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP)—The United States Golf Association has eliminated Atlanta as an express stop on its transit system to the National Open at the Canterbury C. C. near Cleveland June 6-8.

The home of Bobby Jones, Charley Yates and many another important golfing figure was one of six cities where sectional qualifying trials were held last year that were not included in this year's district tournament arrangements. The other sites eliminated were Richmond, Va.; Memphis, Tenn.; Huntington, W. Va.; New Orleans and Houston, Tex.

Yankee Powell X-Rayed After Fence Crash

ASHLAND, Ky., April 11 (INS)—Physicians were expected to determine today the full extent of the head injury suffered yesterday by Jake Powell, star New York Yankees right-fielder, who crashed into a steel fence while chasing a Brooklyn Dodgers hit.

Dr. C. B. Daniels at the Kings Daughters Hospital said Powell suffered a severe concussion and would have to remain for three or four days until X-ray pictures are taken and examined.

He said it was not believed Powell had suffered a fracture but that he had sustained a painful bruise.

The right-fielder was unconscious for several minutes. Powell made a flying backward leap for the ball and thudded into the fence.

R. I. Kegler Defends Title

The greatest array of candlepin talent ever assembled in one place will gather at the Huntington Club Saturday night for open singles title in the Fifth Annual American-Record-Advertiser Diamond Medal Bowling Championships.

Every great professional bowler will step up to the line on the final night of the tourney seeking the glory and the large cash purse that goes to the winner.

The field is so large that there will have to be eliminations before a top bracket is secured for the final rolloff.

Each man entering this event posts an entry fee of $5, plus the cost of his bowling. All money collected from the entry fees will be returned in the form of cash prizes.

Nick Faye of Apponaug, R. I., who is now out in the open men's doubles, will attempt to retain his open singles championships of last year, but whether he can again stop some of the talent which he will be called upon to face is quite a question.

With former world's champions such as Francis Chiminello, Joe Bonigli, "Daisy" Haley, Billy Butts and Paul Poehler plus a flock of other top notchers, any one of whom can step into top money, the chances of Faye retaining his title are slim. In fields of this calibre, it is seldom that anybody can repeat.

Heinicke Joins B. A. A. Race List

The big news in the latest announcement of entries for the 44th annual B. A. A. marathon run which will be held a week from tomorrow over the Hopkinton to Boston course on Patriots' Day was the receipt of the signed blank of Don Heinicke of the Stonewall Democratic Club of Baltimore.

Heinicke in his first B. A. A. marathon in 1939 placed second to Taizan Brown when the Westerly, R. I., Indian established a new course record. The Baltimore Adonis turned in the remarkable performance of two hours 31 minutes, 24 3-5 seconds, and is considered by experts as the man to beat in this big race on April 19.

Other entries included Harold D. Norton, Belmont; Joseph L. Rowinski, Salisbury Young Men's Club, Haverhill; Tyler Hazelton, Lexington; John Kuhn, Methuen; Stanislaus Olszewski, Polish Youth Center Club, Haverhill; Alexander Zeltzman, Nashua, N. H.; Stanley Wenick, Dedham; William F. Good, Norfolk Y. M. A., Roxbury; James E. Lewis, North Medford Club; Joe Kleinman, Garden A. C. New York, finished 16th last year, Albert J. Louis Praises Conn; Takes Rap At Jack Dempsey

PITTSBURGH, April 11 (INS)—Joe Louis, the heavyweight champ, today asserted that Billy Conn, light-heavyweight king, would be a suitable opponent for him.

Louis said he had no intention of retiring, and in reply to a recent statement by Jack Dempsey that fighting so often is cheapening the crown, insisted that he was only doing what Dempsey had promised to do—but didn't, according to Louis.

He is looking forward to bouts in June and September, but said he could not name his probable opponents.

Jane Cothran Leads Jane Bauer by Stroke

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 11 (AP)—Slender Jane Cothran of Greenville, S. C., had a one-stroke lead over Jane Bauer, the Providence, R. I., medalist, today at the start of their third 18 holes of the Land of the Sky invitational golf tournament for women.

Midway the 72-hole medal play affair, Miss Cothran had a 166, made possible by her 81 yesterday. Miss Bauer had putting trouble and took an 84 for a total of 167.

Leafs, Rangers Play Fifth Game For Stanley Cup

TORONTO, April 11 (AP)—With the fifth game of the Stanley Cup finals scheduled here tonight it has become increasingly evident that the Toronto Maple Leafs hold an important advantage over the New York Rangers in being able to complete the hockey championships on their home ice.

The Rangers won the first two games of the best-of-seven series at Madison Square Garden last week. Then the scene shifted to Toronto, and the Maple Leafs looked for all the world as if they were on the way to their first cup since 1932 as they captured the next two contests, 2 to 1 and 3 to 0, and squared the series.

"I figure that a team must be 25 per cent better than we are to beat us at home," says Coach Dick Irvin of the Leafs. "We have been beaten here only three times in 30 starts this season."

Tonight's game nominally would have been played on the Rangers' own ice, but they have been forced out of Madison Square Garden by the circus.

Coach Frank Boucher let a few of the Rangers idle about on the ice Wednesday. Stan Smith and Bill Allum, from the Philadelphia club, worked about an hour extra. Alex Shibicky tested his bad ankle on the ice and it still was tender. Boucher said he probably would start Stan Smith in Shibicky's place.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

WHILE ANSWERING questions at several quizzes following recent speaking engagements at sports nights, I found people are very much baseball minded at this time of the year. At a Brotherhood fathers' and sons' night in Chelsea, 80 per cent of the questions asked this writer concerned baseball.

Heavyweight championship boxing bouts received a 15 per cent rating, while the other 5 per cent of the questions were about Marathon running, wrestling, and other sports.

I believe this test proves my contention that baseball is still the national pastime. Important baseball events rate front page space in the newspapers.

I found that people are hoping the Red Sox will win the American League pennant, but that in their hearts they do not believe there is a club that can defeat the Yanks.

"How long do you believe it will be before the Yanks crack up?" asked one Red Sox rooter.

I told him I thought the present Yankee team could go on winning for two or three more years at least.

The interest of the public centers around Dominic DeMaggio and Ted Williams. The fans realize that if the Red Sox are going to win a pennant they must have more young stars.

"What about the Red Sox pitchers and catchers?" was a common question.

I was sorry to say I couldn't give any hope for improvement in these two important departments of the game.

If the Red Sox had a Paul Derringer or a Charley Ruffing, Joe Cronin could look forward to the 1940 season with more hope than he has now.

Eddie Collins once told me that pitching is 60 per cent of the success of any ball club. have often thought of Collins' statement as I have watched the Red Sox lose games that would have been won with only fair pitching.

* * *

LEFTY GROVE will brush back his whiskers at Washington on next Monday afternoon and pitch for the Red Sox in the opening game of the league season against the Senators. Grove, past 40, is still the safest pitching bet the Sox have. This isn't saying a great deal for the young flingers with the club.

For several years Joe Cronin has been expecting Grove would have to retire, but each time Lefty has run into trouble he has staged another comeback after a short rest.

What the Red Sox need is a sure fire pitcher who would have a little percentage in his favor in a crucial game. The Yankees have had two such flingers in Charley Ruffing and Lefty Gomez.

The Sox have as much power and baseball brains as the Yankees. The trouble with the Sox has been pitching and catching weakness.

A great catcher like Billy Dickey or Al Lopez might be able to improve the young pitchers with the Sox.

* * *

THERE IS considerable interest among baseball fans in Eddie Miller, Max West and Sibby Sisti of the Bees. I have also been asked if I thought Scarsella is as good a first baseman as Hassett.

Nobody expects the Bees to win the National League pennant, or finish among the first three, but there is a general belief that the club will be stronger than it was a year ago. For one thing, Casey Stengel has got better replacements. If the Bees are unfortunate in running into injuries, they will have the necessary players for reinforcements.

* * *

THERE IS A growing demand for a new heavyweight contender. The fans would like to see Joe Louis relieved of his title. The questions asked me indicate few people have much confidence that Tony Galento, Max Baer, Arturo Godoy, Bob Pastor or "Red" Burman can win from Louis.

"Isn't there some youngster in the amateurs who looks as if he could be built up as a real contender for Louis?" queried one fan.

Unfortunately there does not appear to be such a heavyweight.

In time, of course, some youngster will come blazing to the front behind a barrage of left and right hand punches, and he will knock out Louis.

I think Louis can be knocked out by a good puncher. The "Brown Bomber," while a destructive puncher himself, does not take a sock around the head any too well. This was evident as Louis was knocked down by Galento, Schmeling, Braddock and other opponents.

The Ice Cream and Cake league, with its numerous Winter sports nights and dinners, will fold up next week with the opening of the baseball and racing seasons. I think we charter members are pleased over this as it is much more interesting watching the action in athletics than talking about it.

Ostermueller Rejoins Sox Tomorrow

BALTIMORE, Md., April 11—Fritz Ostermueller, Red Sox southpaw, who was left behind in Florida when the club broke camp at Sarasota in March, will rejoin the club in Boston, tomorrow, Manager Joe Cronin announced today.

Underweight from the flu and a serious attack of sinus, the veteran Osty did little work while the club was in Florida but has sent word that he is back to normalcy again and is ready for duty.

It is possible that he will pitch a few innings against Holy Cross tomorrow if the day is warm.

The Sox will use their regular lineup at Holy Cross, with the exception of Doc Cramer, who hopped over to his Manahawkin, N. J., home today to spend the night. He will be with the club when they open the city series with the Bees Saturday.

Dominic DiMaggio will play center field tomorrow for the Sox, with Lou Finney in Dom's right

Max Carey Better Base-Runner Than Ty Cobb, Opines Jewel Ens

By HERB FINNEGAN

BALTIMORE, Md., April 11—Jewel Ens, Reds scout, was a coach at Pittsburgh when Joe Cronin broke in as a rookie. They have been friendly since. They were talking about base-running, an art at which the Red Sox do not excel. Said Jewel:

Max Carey was the greatest base runner in history. Cobb was second best. Cobb was more daring than Max and stole more bases, but that was because he took more chances. Carey made a study of base running as nobody has since his day. He watched every move the pitchers made. He studied their hands, their feet. He knew when they were going to throw to the plate, when to the batter. One season he stole 51 bases out of 53 attempts.

"Carey never slid back to first," Ens continued. "He never had to. And yet he took the longest lead off first base of any man ever to play the game. He was caught off first plenty of times, I'll admit. A smart pitcher who'd do a little faking would catch him. But never twice.

"Carey never cared who was catching, whether he had an arm like a rifle or not. He always stole on the pitcher. When he broke for second a catcher never had a chance to get him.

"I never could see why, when on second, Max would take his lead with his back to third. I couldn't see what he gained by it. True, he could watch the shortstop and second baseman better, but he must have lost some yardage when turning to run to third. However, he swore it was to his advantage, so we let him alone. Like changing a fellow's batting stance. Why bother with it if he's hitting?

"I wish some of the younger fellows today would make a study of base-running, as Carey did. It's a lost art practically, and baseball is the loser for it."

BEES TOIL AT HIVE TOMORROW

By BILL GRIMES

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11—After the fifth and final game of the Washington series this afternoon at Griffith Stadium, the Bees will climb aboard the Federal Express for home to be guests of the club at the Kenmore until they open the 1940 season Tuesday at the Hive against Leo Durocher's Dodgers.

Manager Casey Stengel has issued orders for his players to be at National League Field tomorrow morning at 11. After they have tried on their new uniforms, which will be worn in the series with the Red Sox, the Bees will be put through a long practice session, which, for the most part, will be devoted to batting.

STENGEL

Until they arrived here yesterday, the Bees played one night stands for a week. They went out to the ball parks at Sebring, Orlando, Valdosta, Savannah, Augusta, Greenville, Winston-Salem and here at 1:30 and waited every day for the home club to hit before they were allowed to get in any batting. If Casey Stengel has any say in the matter, the Bees will have wood poisoning from batting between tomorrow and the opening of the 1940 National League campaign.

TOBIN GOES TO HILL

Jim Tobin, who was acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates during the off season, is scheduled to pitch this afternoon. Tobin has been the top ranking Bees' pitcher all spring and, barring accidents, he'll receive the nod from Ol' Case for the opener against the Dodgers.

For a couple of years before he came to the Bees, Jim Tobin was tabbed as a play-boy. I've been with him for six weeks and if he's entitled to that moniker, all I can say is that the Bees should have more of that type. He was the first pitcher on the roster to get in shape and he's one of the best workers on the entire squad.

On his last time out, which was at Orlando on the hottest day the Bees have played or practised all spring Tobin went the route. He held the Nats to six hits for seven innings and but for the fact that he'd have limited them to one run over the same distance.

COMEDY OF ERRORS

"Tob" issued four walks in the third, one real hit and a "bloop" gave the Nats three tallies. Then, he was charged with five runs in the 8th but, if Eddie Miller hadn't fallen after he had scooped up Buddy Lewis grounder and Chet Ross and Tony Cuccinello hadn't erred on the next play, Tobin might have weathered that round without a run being scored on him.

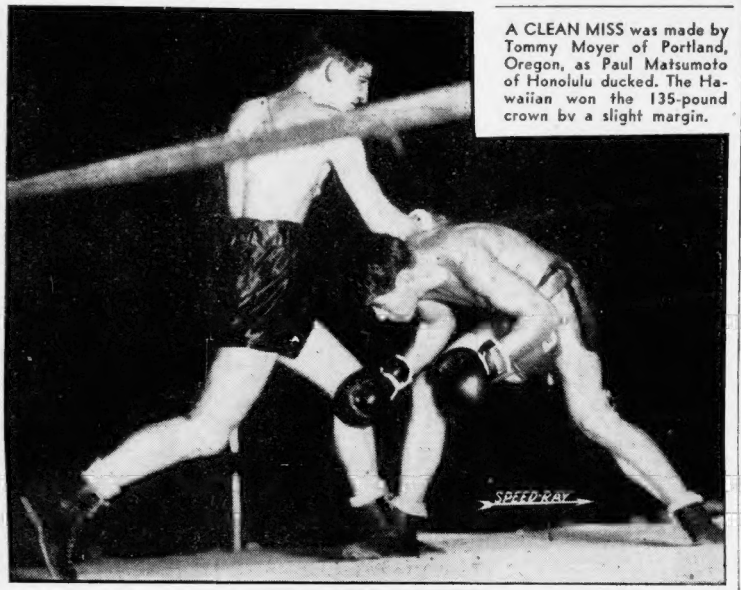
Hawaiians Win Two Ring Titles As N.E. Boxers Bow at Garden



A CLEAN MISS was made by Tommy Moyer of Portland, Oregon, as Paul Matsumoto of Honolulu ducked. The Hawaiian won the 135-pound crown by a slight margin.

By JACK CONWAY

There were two national amateur boxing titles for little Hawaii and one each for Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cleveland, Indiana and New Jersey in blazing ring action before 10,101 fans at the A. A. U. championships at the Garden.

New England failed to gain a title as Eddie DeAngelis of Revere, 112 pounds, Harold Harris of Malden, 126 pounds, and Jimmy Mulligan of Lowell were eliminated in the semi-finals.

The big crowd, which paid $13,537 gross for a net gate of $11,704, waited until the final blow was delivered in the heavyweight bout between Charles "Cyclone" Williams of Buffalo and Wallace Cross of New Jersey before leaving for home shortly before 1 a. m.

CROSS UPSET WILLIAMS

Cross scored a startling upset when by superior boxing and footwork he outscored the slugging Williams.

Johnny Manalo of Honolulu was crowned champion in 112-pound class when he outpointed Dado Marino of Honolulu in a spirited three-round bout. The milling was so close that the crowd yelled for a draw, but such decisions are not permitted.

REVERE BOY LOSES

In the semi-final bouts Johnny Manalo of Honolulu defeated Eddie DeAngelis of Revere, and Dado Marino of Honolulu received the duke over Alyin Barker of Salt Lake City.

DeAngelis made a stout hearted battle against Marino and in the opinion of the crowd was entitled to the decision. It was a hard, bitter battle with the rival boxers tossing leather with reckless abandon.

The bout between Marino and Barker was close, but the Hawaiian boxer had the margin and was entitled to the decision.

CAME FROM BEHIND

The 118-pound title went to Angelo Ambrosano of Philadelphia, who won the unanimous decision over the hard hitting John Chimera of Buffalo. The latter finished strong in the third round, but he was unable to overcome Ambrosano's early lead.

In the first semi-final, John Chimera of Buffalo came from behind to win the unanimous verdict over Bat Cullison of Kansas.

There was blazing action when Lucas Pasion of Honolulu collided with Angelo Ambrosano of Philadelphia. In the first session, the rival boxers stood toe to toe and traded furious blows.

REFEREE HALTS BOUT

Shortly after the bell in the second session, Pasion dropped Ambrosano to the canvas. The Philadelphia boxer got up without taking the benefit of any part of the count.

The second round was even, with Ambrosano putting on a rally in the third session that gave him the decision.

Frank Robinson, colored boxer from Pittsburgh, stopped Yasuki Yasutake of Honolulu in one round in the final of the 126-pound class. Robinson scored two knockdowns when the referee halted the bout.

Harold Harris of Malden, New England's hope in the 126 pound class, was eliminated in his semi-final bout with Frank Robinson of Pittsburgh. Robinson swarmed over Harris from the start, and piled up a commanding lead.

HAWAIIAN WINS

A late spurt enabled Yasuki Yasutake of Honolulu to win a close decision over Art Foster of Buffalo in the other semi-final in the 126-pound division.

In one of the best bouts of the show, Paul Matsumoto of Hawaii was awarded the decision over Thomas Moyer of Portland, Oregon, in the final of the 135 pound class. Referee Martin voted for Moyer. The crowd booed the decision.

Moyer won the first round easily, Matsumato took the second session, while the third frame was very close. If draws were permitted, it would have been a good draw. There was little to choose between the two boxers at the finish.

Moyer, by the use of a fast left hand, disposed of Beauford Glover of Ohio in three rounds in one of the semi-finals.

MORE HONORS FOR HAWAII

There were additional honors for Hawaii when Paul Matsumoto outpunched Ritchie Shinn of San Francisco in the other semi-final.

Henry Brimm, colored welterweight from Buffalo, gained the duke over Ernie Derbo of Indiana in a gruelling tussle. Brimm's margin of victory was small.

TIGERS' PITCHING WOBBLY

By Associated Press

DANVILLE, Va., April 11—The Cleveland Indians' anxiety over Hal Trosky's injured hand was lightened today after an X-ray examination showed no broken bones. The big first baseman expects to return to the lineup possibly Saturday or Sunday, when the club completes its exhibition series with the New York Giants in Cleveland.

DANVILLE, Va.—The biggest worry the New York Giants have right now is Mel Ott, their veteran outfielder. One of the slugging champions of the National League for years, he has appeared considerably slower this spring and has an average of exactly .200 for 65 times at bat. He went hitless yesterday against the Cleveland Indians.

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio — Opening their four game skirmish with the Cincinnati Reds, the Detroit Tigers were ready today to face hard facts regarding their pitching. It's none too promising and the series with the Reds may show it up for what it is. The Reds came into the series on the heels of an 11-game duel with the Boston Red Sox and Manager Bill McKechnie planned to rest Paul Derringer until the opening game next Tuesday.

WASHINGTON—Old time fans who remember Torres as a catcher for the Nats back in 1920-23 may see his son in action this year on Washington's twirling staff. Gilbert Torres, a tall, melancholy person, came to camp rated the best third-sacker in Cuba. But he went to work as a pitcher and demonstrated a good knuckle ball that has made Manager Bucky Harris heighten his interest.
